CONGRESS MAY ORDER PROBE

Young Wood's Operations Likely to Be Investigated.

MADE MILLION IN WALL STREET

War Department Officials Admit No Action Was Taken to Investigate the Young Lieutenant's Speculations—Latter Now Serving as Military Aide to His Father in Manila. Secretary Weeks Issues Statement.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Responsible war department officials made the frank admission that no action, official or unofficial, has been taken to investigate Second Lieutenant Osborne Wood's Wall street speculations, estimated to have netted him $750,000 to $2,500,000.

Congress is expected to order an investigation immediately after the holiday recess. Representative Frear of Wisconsin said young Wood's operations would fall within the scope of his resolution, now before the house, to probe the activities of all persons associated with Major General George Leonard Wood as governor general of the Philippines. Osborne Wood is serving as military aide to his father at the present time in Manila.

The attitude of the war department is regarded as of unusual interest owing to the fact that the story of Lieutenant Wood's huge stock and bank balances was laid before the secretary of war three months ago. The statement attributed to Secretary Weeks in Boston "that he had been obliged to check certain financial operations of Lieutenant Wood" is not sustained here. The official war department version is that friends of Major General Wood came to the secretary and urged action. They were advised to take the matter up privately with the young officer's father. Among those who made such an appeal to the secretary of war was Henry Thompson of New York and Chicago, Osborne Wood's father-in-law.

This appears to eliminate the rich father-in-law as the source from which Osborne Wood obtained his original capital to gamble in Wall street. It is established that Major General Wood, the father, is a man of small means.

Revelation Not Unexpected.

Official representatives here of the Philippine government charge that Osborne Wood's advent in high finance dates from the period of his father's campaign for the Republican nomination for president four years ago. In this quarter it is reported that certain American financial interests during the pre-convention period of 1920 "carried" Osborne Wood on a deal for between $200,000 and $300,000 of oil stock, the profit from which gave him a start for future speculations. It is not suggested in any way that Major General Wood had knowledge of such a transaction. The Philippine government's representatives here were greatly excited over developments. They said such a revelation was not unexpected. It is charged, unofficially that Osborne Wood is responsible for much of the feeling that exists in Manila against his distinguished father.

A surprising feature of the developments was the revelation that Lieutenant Wood conducted his Wall street campaign from his post in far away Manila largely as the result of nightly cabled "tips" from New York.

WOULD END DEADLOCK

Proposal Would Permit Commerce Committee to Elect Chairman.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Senate leaders are considering a proposal to permit the interstate commerce committee to select its own chairman, thereby ending the deadlock which has existed since congress opened.

In the opinion of Republican senators this procedure would result in the election of Senator Cummins of Iowa, whom they have supported on every ballot in the senate. The committee is composed of 10 Republicans and seven Democrats.

Insurgents in the LaFollette group, who have been opposing Cummins from the start, are to hold a meeting a day or so before congress reconvenes on Jan. 3, and discuss what form of strategy they will adopt when the balloting is resumed. They may decide to vote for Smith on a few more ballots, unless it is agreed to throw the whole contest into the committee and allow it to be decided by its 17 members.

NAVY BUDGET MAY BE CUT

Destroyer Disaster Figures In House Committee Hearing.

Washington, Dec. 27.—A fight to cut the requested $375,000,000 navy budget was forecast when the house appropriations committee called for the proceedings of the courtmartial of naval officers responsible for the Point Honda destroyer crash Sept. 8. It was intimated that the committee would debate whether to charge against the appropriation for 1924-25 the amount lost when the seven destroyers went on the rocks. It is estimated at between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000. Chairman Madden of Illinois, it was pointed out, is essentially a "small navy" man.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt will go before the committee and Rear Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of the bureau of operations, will carry the papers demanded. Secretary Denby concluded his testimony just prior to the holidays adjournment, and was cautioned that he should give out no part of the proceedings. It is understood he was questioned sharply as to the destroyer disaster and the findings of the courtmartial held at San Diego.

NEW COMPANY TO GO AFTER MUSCLE SHOALS

Henry Ford Expected to Have Strong Opposition.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Henry Ford will have opposition when his new bid for Muscle Shoals is submitted to the war department and congress, it was revealed here.

Information has reached Washington that a joint bid for the big Tennessee river power project will be submitted by the Alabama Power company and the Tennessee Electric Power company. These two companies operate in the territory of Alabama and Tennessee that would be served directly by the Muscle Shoals development. They also have physical connections with the Georgia Railway and Power company, and through it with the Southern Power company, operating in Georgia and the Carolinas.

The Alabama company, which recently purchased the Gorgas steam plant and transmission lines, which Ford sought in his original bid, was a bidder for Muscle Shoals last year, after Ford had submitted his offer. The Tennessee company is a new factor in bidding for Muscle Shoals.

One of the strong objections raised to the Alabama company by members of congress is that it has been controlled by British capital through Canadian bondholders. In this new plan to submit a joint bid with the Tennessee company a move is seen partially to get around this foreign ownership objection. The Tennessee company is financed by the Clark interests of Philadelphia.

Fox Roundup Planned.

Millersburg, O., Dec. 27.—Eight hundred Tuscarawas, Holmes and Coshoc county farmers will attempt to catch foxes without the use of guns or dogs in a big roundup that will be staged New Year's day by the Tri-county Fox Drive association.

PROGRESS MADE BY COMMITTEE

Administrative Features May Be Lifted Out of Tax Bill.

SEPARATE MEASURE PROBABLE

Step Would Clear Way For Speedy Action When the Whole Committee Resumes Consideration of the Tax Reduction Plan After the Holidays. Term, Administrative Provisions, Considerably Broadened.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Good progress was made by the voluntary subcommittee of the house ways and means committee in sorting out the administrative features of the Mellon tax reduction bill. The purpose was to clear the way for speedy action when the whole committee resumes consideration of the measure after the holidays.

The subcommittee will consider a recommendation to the whole committee on the feasibility of lifting out the administrative features and reporting them to the house in a separate bill, leaving the actual cuts in tax rates recommended by the administration for a second measure. Sentiment was said by subcommittee members to be strongly in favor of this course.

The first reason for such action, it was explained, was that there are no serious differences of opinion among the Republicans, Democrats and progressives on this part of the Mellon plan, which would insure early action on a separate bill. Secondly, it was said, by following this procedure the senate and the finance committee on that side, which, under the constitution, must await action by the house on all revenue and tariff legislation, would be given something to begin work on while the house was completing the remainder of the program.

When the house later shall pass the bill embodying the second half of the Mellon proposals—the actual reductions in income and other tax rates—the senate, it was pointed out, could very easily combine the two measures. Or if the tax cuts met with a prolonged fight and appeared in any serious danger, which is not now expected, the administrative bill could be put through separately. This would simplify and facilitate the operation of the present law and give the treasury $60,000,000 in additional revenue by stopping up loopholes for evasions.

In paving the way for possible separate action, the subcommittee considerably broadened the term "administrative provisions." It was decided to include under this heading all features of the bill which do not involve charges of policy or rate alteration. Two most important sections were brought under this classification by common consent. They are: Putting allowances for capital losses on the same basis as capital gains, expected to produce $25,000,000 a year in additional revenue, and limiting deductions for non-business losses and interest paid, estimated to yield $35,000,000 additional annually.

Attacked by Alligator.

New York, Dec. 27.—An alligator's dislike for a dead pigeon nearly cost John O'Brien, Brooklyn zoo keeper, his leg. Captured in the swamps of Georgia, the alligator was being formally presented to the animal court with much pomp and ceremony, while several officials of the city looked on. O'Brien, anxious to show off his charge, threw the amphibian a dead pigeon. The alligator, accustomed only to live birds, leaped 10 feet and caught O'Brien's leg between his jaws. William Ostrander, an assistant to O'Brien, then amazed the lookers-on by grabbing the jaws of the alligator, pulling them apart and releasing the keeper's leg. O'Brien was painfully wounded.

Newspaper Deal.

Wilmington, O., Dec. 27.—Raymond B. Howard, city editor of the Wilmington News, has purchased the entire stock of the Madison County Press at London, and will assume control Jan. 1, it was announced here.

Killed on Wedding Day.

Portsmouth, O., Dec. 27.—Mrs. Agnes Davis, bride of a day, had her happiness turned into grief when her husband, William Davis, died in a local hospital, the result of having been shot by Garner Vencill, 23. Vencill is in jail. The shooting occurred in front of a church in New Boston, a suburb of Portsmouth. It is alleged the tragedy was the culmination of an old grudge. Vencill claims self-defense.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Receiver For Brokerage Firm.

Cincinnati, Dec. 27.—Alleging that he paid $641 for stock that never was delivered, Benjamin Statman made application for a receiver for the brokerage firm of Edward S. Cox & Company, in common pleas court here. Judge Edward T. Dixon appointed Attorney John Kramer as receiver. Statman in his suit alleges that Dec. 18 Cox sold his business to Benjamin Weis of Chicago and that Cox has been absent from the city since and can not be located.

Woman Accused of Blackmail.

Medina, O., Dec. 27.—Fred Thompson, Medina farmer, who fled from his home after receiving threats, will be the principal witness at the trial of Mrs. Lucille Renner, who, police say, has confessed to writing threatening "Klan" letters to him. Mrs. Renner is under indictment for alleged blackmail. Thompson abandoned his wife and six children when he fled.

Held to Grand Jury.

Cincinnati, Dec. 27.—F. L. Constineer, was held to the federal grand jury after a hearing on the charge of impersonating a government prohibition agent and endeavoring to obtain $1,000 on the promise of giving protection in the manufacture of illicit liquor.

Young Hunter Killed.

Mansfield, O., Dec. 27.—Walter Rinehart, 18, failed to unload his rifle as he climbed a fence near his home at Johnsville, and when the weapon was discharged a bullet pierced his heart and killed him. The body was found several hours later by members of his family.

Bullet Wound Fatal.

New Philadelphia, O., Dec. 27.—Francis Glass, 12-year-old son of John Glass, who was accidentally shot by his nephew, Raymond Penrod, 9 years old, while the two young lads were hunting rabbits with the elder Glass, died later at the Glass home, four miles east of this city.

Fined For Defacing Property.

Bellaire, O., Dec. 27.—Charles Curzon, 18, and Ernest Rubloom, 19, were fined $25 in the court of Mayor Yocum of Barnesville, on charges of defacing property. It was alleged they had painted three K's with a skull and crossbones on the front door of a Barnesville church.

Poison Liqueur Blamed.

Steubenville, O., Dec. 27.—Poison liquor caused the death of Henry Ware, 42, who was found dead at his home at Weirton, W. Va. Two others are in a serious condition and two others are held for furnishing the poisonous liquor.

Takes Up Ship Beard Tangle.

Washington, Dec. 27.—President Coolidge took up the shipping board tangle in the hope of selecting quickly a chairman from the west coast, particularly Puget sound. It is believed that Chairman Farley is anxious to be out of the picture as soon as possible, but will await the president's pleasure. He will not resign under fire.

Prince to Wed Canadian.

Copenhagen, Dec. 27.—It is officially announced that the king of Denmark has consented to the marriage of Prince Erik to the daughter of millionaire J. R. Booth, Canadian timber king. The prince's future title will be Erik, prince of Denmark and Count Roseburg.

FOURTEEN DIE IN ASYLUM FIRE

Frame Annex of Illinois Insane Hospital Destroyed.

INMATES FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Fifty Patients Escape From Cordon of Hospital Guards and Police. Ruins May Yield a Dozen More Bodies, Officials Say—Seven Hundred Patients Housed in the Annex, Most of Them Being Ill.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Four thousand inmates battled for freedom when fire destroyed annex No. 1 of the Illinois state hospital for insane at Dunning, a Chicago suburb.

Bodies of 14 patients were dragged from the ruins. The debris may yield more bodies, according to hospital authorities. Fifty patients escaped the cordon of hospital guards and police thrown about the institution when the fire alarm sounded.

Most of the patients were in dining halls when the fire broke out. Dr. C. D. Coffey, in charge of the hospital, said 700 patients were housed in the annex. Most of these were ill with tuberculosis, as well as mentally deranged. A number were known as "violent" cases.

Ten minutes after the fire was discovered fire fighting equipment and heavy details of police were being rushed to the hospital from Chicago. The annex was a frame building, a two-story structure, 400 feet long. It was two blocks from the administration building, a fireproof structure. But surrounding the annex were a number of cottages and small frame buildings, all housing their quotas of patients. The roofs of these buildings caught fire repeatedly.

Driven from the mess halls by guards the 4,000 inmates rushed to the gates of the high enclosure about the asylum grounds, trying to escape.

Two hospital employees, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Carker, are believed to be among the dead.

Police officers and hospital guards began scouring the city for the patients who escaped while the flames raged.

Dr. Coffey, after checking the inmates, said he was unable to determine how many had escaped and how many may have lost their lives. The ruins may yield a dozen more bodies, he said. The administration building was used as a concentration point for the inmates as they were rounded up by guards.

The wildest disorder prevailed in early stages of the fire. The patients ran screaming from the burning building. Their cries were taken up by inmates from other units of the institution. Guards and police fought to quiet them. Numbers of patients, after reaching safety, attempted to re-enter the burning building, but were beaten back by guards.

HIGH OFFICIALS SAFE

No Charge of Conspiracy Can Be Placed Against Them.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Possibility of high government officials facing a grand jury as conspirators to violate the prohibition law, following the capital's biggest bootleg scandal, has faded. No charge of the sort could be brought against them, though it were definitely shown that they had been patrons of the Scarborough-Morris ring, alleged members of which were rounded up last week. This was the statement, solidly backed by law, of prosecuting officers of the government. It was pointed out that the buyer and seller of illicit liquor commit entirely different acts, that they are not actuated by the same criminal intent and that they are, therefore, not acting in conspiracy.

The veil of mystery thrown over the famous list, said to have contained the names of 1,400 prominent patrons of the ring, remains unpierced. Local officials declare they will do everything in their power to bring the vanished notations to light, but where they now rest, even if not destroyed, is as much a puzzle as ever.

Stork Hovers Over Palace.

Rome, Dec. 27.—It was disclosed that the queen has ordered a "baby crousseau," thus confirming the report that the Princess Yolanda is soon to become a mother.

Reckless Driver Soaked

Cleveland, Dec. 27.—Long workhouse sentences were given traffic violators in Judge Alva R. Corlett's court. Three men were sent to the workhouse for six months, one for three months and one for 30 days.

PRODUCED FROM ARSENIC

New Poison Gas the Latest Achievement in Chemistry.

Berlin, Dec. 27.—Not coal or oil, but arsenic, will be the trump of the future in the international race for power. The country that controls the largest arsenic deposits and organizes the greatest production will be the victor in the next war.

That is the prediction being whispered in high European diplomatic circles, where was is still accepted as a matter of course. It is based on the latest achievements in chemistry—a new poison gas produced from arsenic, which is said to surpass anything heretofore dreamed of in the way of power to annihilate. This gas will be the main weapon of future armies.

According to the latest statistics, arsenic production is greatest in the United States. England is mainly dependent on Canada and other possessions for its supply. Figures showing highest arsenic production for the last four years are: United States, 10,470 tons; Germany, 5,116 tons; Canada, 3,074 tons; France, 2,261 tons, and Japan, 1,299 tons.

Sue For $110,000.

Cleveland, Dec. 27.—Suits totaling $110,000 were filed in federal court here against the Pennsylvania railroad. Three Canton persons, Roy A. Fink, Mabel Edwards and Alice Edwards, brought suits for $20,000 each for injuries suffered when the auto driven by Fink was struck by a Pennsylvania trolley at a Canton grade crossing, Jan. 3, 1923. Clifford G. Thorsen, also of Canton, filed suit for $50,000, claiming permanent injuries when he was forced to jump from the cab of a Pennsylvania train to avoid a threatened wreck, Aug. 26, 1923. Thorsen was a railway fireman.

WEEKS' ADMISSION

Checked Certain Financial Operations of Young Wood.

Boston, Dec. 27.—Secretary of War Weeks admitted that he had been obliged officially to check certain financial operations of Lieutenant Osborne Cutler Wood, son and military aide to Governor General Wood of the Philippines, who is reputed to have amassed a fortune of more than $1,000,000 in 14 months.

It was learned that Wood probably made his money in sugar speculation. Secretary Weeks was interviewed about the financial dealings of Lieutenant Wood at his home in West Newton, where he is spending the holidays. He said:

"Some months ago there was brought to my attention the fact that large checks were coming through American banks to the credit of Lieutenant Osborne C. Wood, who is stationed in Manila. The amounts involved seemed to me to be beyond the probable financial responsibility of the lieutenant, and, as he was an officer in the army, I directed that his operations should stop. This order was immediately complied with. Other than that I considered his financial operations entirely personal to himself and that the subject was not one that warranted departmental action."

LOVE AND ROMANCE

By CORONA REMINGTON

©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

IT'S dreadful not to be the least bit in love; not even to have anything hanging around to fall in love with, and to see everywhere couples looking at each other with that how-I-adore-you, darling-how-could-I-live-without-you expression on their faces. Everybody had somebody—except Violette Ramsdale.

Then came John Hodges. He walked into her life as easily and unexpectedly as—well, as most lovers do.

"And so your name is Violette? May I use it?" he asked as they parted.

A perplexed little expression chased itself across Miss Ramsdale's face. "I—I'm glad you like it," she said after a moment. "Yes, you may call me that."

Hodges took her here, there and everywhere. Each evening they were together and often lunch time found them seated across the table from each other in some quiet little restaurant. He wooed her impetuously, sent her flowers and brought her candy.

"You're so good to me," she said gratefully one evening as he was rising to go.

"How could any one help being good to you?" he asked. "You're so—so absolutely adorable."

Violette flushed and trembled. He was going to propose, she knew. What should she say? What should she do?

"Violette, I—I love you."

He was drawing her into his arms, his eyes looked big and almost startled, so close to hers. "You lovely thing," he said reverently, kissing her.

It was over, the experience of her life, the one for which she had been waiting so long. She had been wooed and won—and kissed. That night, after he had gone and she had retired, she stared at the dark ceiling and lived over the blissful evening. She didn't want to go to sleep. How could she for a moment even endure the idea of shutting out all those thrilling memories with sleep? Sleep was for those who were bored and unhappy.

Then, in going over his every word for the fortieth time it occurred to her that, after all, he had not really proposed, that is, he had not actually said the words, but of course he meant it; did he mean it? The rest of the night was not so pleasant, and by the time she finally fell asleep she was glad that she had only let him have two little kisses.

The next morning she was decidedly uneasy, and she remembered now a slight feeling, not exactly of mistrust, but perhaps more a feeling of not complete trust, that she had always had when she was with him. But it was so sweet to be loved, and she had been so lonely.

"What makes you so quiet and solemn today?" asked her employer, Jim Foster. "You don't seem a bit like your happy little self."

Violette flushed and looked down at her typewriter.

"I don't believe it's anything," she said shakily.

"Well, if you need any help or advice, Violette, remember Jim Foster's right here."

She flashed him a grateful look and turned to the jangling telephone.

"This is John, darling," came the voice over the wire. "I'm so sorry I have a business engagement and can't get down to take you to lunch today. So, so sorry, dear."

So she went alone at noon and chanced to go to a dainty little tea-room a few blocks down the street. She would not go to any of her favorite haunts. It would make her feel all the lonelier. She had been sitting there a few minutes when she recognized the back in front of her as John's own well-tailored back. He was leaning across the table, talking to a pretty girl.

"You know I love you," she heard him say in a low tone, and in her horrified mind Violette could see his eyes glowing as they had when he had kissed her the night before. She jumped up and hurried out of the tea-room unobserved.

"Why, what's the matter, Violette?" her employer asked as she rushed into the office. "You haven't been gone ten minutes and you look as if you'd seen a ghost."

"Oh, nothing, nothing nothing!" she wailed, bursting into tears.

"Well, there's only one place for you to cry, and that's right here."

He held her quietly in his arms and stroked her soft hair.

"You know," he was saying gently, "you need a man like me to shoulder your woes, and when you are tired of running around with that he-vamp I'm going to propose to you, dear. I've been watching you, though, and I believe in letting a girl have it out. Sooner or later you'll find out he's not the kind for you, else I'm very much mistaken in him or you."

It was not romantic, this second proposal of hers, but it was so comfortable and safe and good.

"I'm through," she answered meekly.

ly a moment later. "I've found out, but I would have had to have that first experience to be able to appreciate you. I know now there's a big difference between love and romance. There's some love that's romance, but there's a whole lot of romance that isn't love."

"Right you are, but ours shall be both," he promised, happily.

Some New Terms Needed.

The Smile That Failed.

A smile, I've heard somebody say, brings thirteen muscles into play; while if you want a frown to thrive you've got to work up sixty-five. To-day with luck I chanced to meet. I found a quarter on the street. I picked it up and right away brought thirteen muscles into play. I blessed my luck, but later on, I grieve to say, the smile was gone, and sixty-five muscles worked like mad, for I found out the coin was bad.—Boston Transcript.

The Palmers.

The name Palmer was given to those persons, during the Middle ages, who had made pilgrimages to the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem, and had brought home palm branches in token of having accomplished the journey. On his return home from the Holy Land the pilgrim repaired to the church to render thanks for his successful journey and gave the palm branch to the priest, who placed it on the altar.

Links Hawaii and Arctic.

Hawaii has established radio contact with the Arctic seas, swept by icebergs, and the sunny shores of the tropical Pacific islands have met through the ether, according to messages received from the exploration party in charge of Capt. Donald B. MacMillan by Jack Barnsley, operator of a Prince Rupert amateur station and member of the American Radio Relay league.

Hard to Please.

"My ideal husband," said the girl who had been reading cheap novels, "must be a strong, silent man, full of grit, and able to bear the heat and burden of the day without flinching—one who will not hear a word said about me, and who will not utter an unkind word himself." "What you want is a deaf and dumb coal heaver," murmured her friend.

Author of Munchausen Tales.

The author of "Baron Munchausen's Narratives"—those fantastic tales of adventure—Rudolph Erich Raspe, was a refugee in England from German justice when he wrote his masterpiece that made him a charter member of the Ananias club, says the Detroit News. Raspe, a native of Hanover, Germany, was curator of the museum of Cassel, and was accused of stealing medals from a collection in his charge. He fled to England to escape prosecution. He obtained employment at the Dolcoath mines in Cornwall, and while there engaged created Baron Munchausen. Raspe died in Ireland in 1794 at the age of fifty-seven.

Children of the Desert.

A passion for snuff and the vanity they display in their personal appearance are the principal failings of the people of the Sahara. These with their habit of incessantly asking for presents, are the worst traits of their character, and may surely be forgiven them for the honor they pay to their women, for the love they display to their children and for the kindness they show to their animals, says the Geographical Journal. Their children are admirably brought up; they have wonderful manners, respect for their elders and unselfishness to one another to a degree which would make European parents envious.

Changing Color With Heat.

Members of the Physical society in London were interested at a recent meeting by an exhibition of specimens of paint which change their color with variations of the temperature. One of these paints is red at ordinary temperatures, but turns black in a few seconds when warmed in front of a stove, or otherwise heated to 206 degrees Fahrenheit. Another paint is yellow until heated to a temperature of 113 degrees Fahrenheit, when it becomes dark red. They are called "heat-indicating paints," but are little more than scientific curiosities.

Possibilities in Honduras.

With a population estimated at 600,000 and an area approximately equal to that of Pennsylvania, Honduras has abundant room for development. It has a tropical climate with few of the usual disadvantages. The interior is mountainous and salubrious, with considerable rich land suitable for diversified farming and fruit growing, while all of the remainder, even the deep mountain slopes, is used for pasturage.

Plants Looking Like Stones.

Nature makes animals look like plants, plants like animals, and both, on rare occasions, like inanimate objects. A striking example of the last mood are stones like plants found in southwest Africa. There are several species of this succulent vegetable resembling various kinds of stones or pebbles, and in general they resemble the fat cactus family, but without thorns, says the Detroit News. Their brown color is a cunning protection against the hungry wild animals that roam the country, for which they would not only furnish an attractive food but a sort of cooling drink. As a further disguise and protection these "living stones" are usually found associated with real stones, smooth stones of dry creek-beds, which they closely imitate in color as well as shape.

Sleepy Hollow Church.

Sleepy Hollow church, at Tarrytown, N. Y., made famous by Washington Irving, recently celebrated its two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary. The old edifice is just like it was when Ichabod Crane sang in the choir, says the Detroit News. Within its gray walls one may still hear the demt-semi-quavers of Crane's psalmody, for it was here that the luckless hero of the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow" lifted his voice to the enjoyment of every fair maid in the community. The church has undergone only slight alterations, and is still used for worship on Sunday afternoons in summer. Thousands of visitors make pilgrimage there each year. The church is right in the heart of the country about which Irving wrote.

Dad's Part in the Game.

One day when Herbert was riding with his father in his machine, he told Herbert not to forget to remind him of a certain errand. After going a little farther his father thought of another thing he wished to be reminded of. Herbert thought seriously for a moment and then turned to his father and said, "Well, dad, I guess you'll please have to remind me to remind you."

Warns of Mine Danger.

The United States bureau of mines has developed a novel means of giving an alarm of danger in all mines where compressed air is made use of throughout the workings. An ill-smelling substance is injected into the compressed air line, and in a few minutes the odor has been spread through all parts of the mine, and will be instantly recognized by the workmen.

Location of Fireplace an Important Feature

From an architectural viewpoint a fireplace chimney may be made much use of in ornamenting the outside of a home. It gives variety in spacing and style of decoration that architects have put to good use. As an exponent of the character of the inside of a house we could scarcely give passers-by a better impression than by this means.

If, on the other hand, one is willing to sacrifice this addition to the outside of his home, much may be gained on the inside by means of this sacrifice. By placing the chimney between walls an extra fireplace may be secured with but little additional cost. For instance, if the chimney is placed in the wall between the living room and the library an opening may be made from both of these rooms. In one home the chimney is utilized in four rooms.

In building fireplaces some general directions in regard to placing should be observed. If your room is quite large and the fireplace to be depended upon entirely for heating, the fireplace should be in the side of the room. If the room is narrow this would not be so well for the reason that one could not arrange the furniture advantageously and at the same time be comfortable himself. Everything would be too close to the fire.

If the shape of the room allows it, the fireplace should, for esthetic reasons, be so placed that it is in full view upon entering the room. A fireplace in a room is the dominant note in that room and must be accorded the place proper to its importance. Besides this, a room must not be furnished with its side to the arriving guests or members of the family. As the fireplace is the most important decorative unit of the room all the other pieces of furniture must be placed with this in mind.

Costume Slips Great Help to Dressmakers

Quite elaborate appearing negligees are evolved through the simple method of buying one of the lovely costume slips and draping over it a loose coat of chiffon or lace, which may be fur-trimmed. These costume slips are a great help to the home dressmaker, whether she be making a negligee, a new frock or altering a last year's dress.

There are particularly lovely slips of white lace and voile, with inset motifs of white lace. These are intended to be worn under a lace or chiffon dress or negligee. Several of the lace motifs are set into the front of the slip to give the effect of a panel, while other motifs are joined to form a deep yoke. The same model worked out in material suitable to wear under a more formal dress is of chiffon and gold lace.

For wear with coat dresses there are slips made like coats which fasten down the entire length of the front. These slips fasten with satin ribbons, run through a narrow insertion placed at a low waistline. A slip made on these lines is of pink net, trimmed with real lace dyed in a matching shade. It is further ornamented with fine hand-tucking and embroidery done on the net. For dresses and negligees having scalloped hems there are slips cut in deep points and finished with embroidery or bound with self material.

Blue Promises to Be Popular Fall Color

Blue for wearing apparel gives every indication of unusual popularity during fall season. This popular color runs the chromatic scale from hedge-sparrow's egg blue to a shade so deep as almost to be black, and finds its fullest expression in the three-piece suits and tailcoats which fashion has decreed for fall.

Compensation for the slightly shorter skirts of these costumes is afforded by the somewhat longer coats, the three-quarter length being especially emphasized by leading designers. Coat sleeves are for the most part narrow and straight and elaborate ornamentation has given way to narrow bands of fur, such as white rabbit, marabout, leopard and reindeer.

Indoor Ivy Boxes.

Painted tin boxes having a green lattice or trellis attached to the top are delightful when filled with growing ivy and placed against the wall. They come in several colors.

Great Wine Cellar in Roumania. The most capacious wine cellar in the world is owned by the Roumanian government. A railway tunnel 2,600 feet long could not be used for the purpose for which it was intended because of inferior construction, so it was leased to a wine dealer, who turned it into a storehouse for wines.

LESSON FOR DECEMBER 30

REVIEW

THE WORLD FOR CHRIST

GOLDEN TEXT—"They shall abundantly utter the memory of Thy great goodness, and shall sing of Thy righteousness."—Ps. 145:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Favorite Missionary Stories.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What We Have Learned About Missions.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is My Missionary Duty?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Present Missionary Outlook.

Two plans for the review are suggested:

1. The Summary Method. This will be to lift out the main facts of each lesson and state the leading teaching thereof. The following brief statements are suggested:

Lesson 1. God called Abraham out from his country and kindred to make him the head of the nation through which the Redeemer was to come. The leading lesson is that God blesses men and nations in order that they may be a blessing. This is the universal law of the spiritual realm.

Lesson 2. Israel was given an exalted position in order that she might make God known to the nations. The message they were directed to proclaim was that God was the Savior of all the nations.

Lesson 3. Israel's geographical position afforded the best opportunity to carry the Gospel to the whole world. She was literally in the center of the world. Special privilege carries with it special responsibility.

Lesson 4. The burden of the message of the prophets was that God is great in mercy to all the nations when they penitently turn to Him from their sins.

Lesson 5. Strong drink works great ruin to all. The only way to escape this ruin is to totally abstain from its use.

Lesson 6. The Psalter, the hymn book of the Jewish nation, has as its central message the Spirit of God's grace to the world. Its aim is to call men back to God.

Lesson 7. Jesus Christ was the pre-eminent missionary. His compassion for the multitude moved Him to send forth laborers in His vineyard. The missionary message to the lost world is that through the sacrificial death of Christ salvation is offered to all.

Lesson 8. Christ saved men in order that they might go to the lost world with the message of His salvation. Those who have experienced His saving power will go forth to tell others.

Lesson 9. The Holy Spirit is the power which will enable the disciples of Christ to witness His salvation. He will not only enable them to witness, but to endure afflictions and trials.

Lesson 10. The Gospel was intended for all the world. God in His providence permits persecutions and strife to scatter the disciples in order that they might witness.

Lesson 11. In spite of opposition, Paul preached the Gospel in the capital city of Rome. He was not ashamed to proclaim it there, for it was the power of God.

Lesson 12. Christ will come and establish His kingdom over the whole earth. Peace and righteousness shall then cover the whole earth.

11. The Question Method. These questions should be assigned to the members of the class the previous week. The following samples are given in Peloubet's Select Notes:

1. What were the missionary characteristics of Abraham?
2. What was God's missionary purpose for Israel?
3. What in Israel's geographical situation made it easy to be a missionary nation?

4. What was the missionary teaching of Jonah?

5. What is the missionary teaching of Israel?

6. Quote a missionary verse of some Psalm.

7. Name some particulars in which Christ was the ideal missionary.

9. Why should every Christian be a missionary?

9. Whence came the missionary power of the early church?

10. Describe the gradual outreach of the early church.

11. Why must Christian missions cover the earth?

12. What will Christ's universal reign do for mankind?

The Lord Knoweth Them.

In the lack of all human recognition, surely the Lord knoweth them that are His. His great heart of love will go out to them, till He has done for them exceedingly abundantly above all that they ask or think.—S. F. Smiley.

The Pledge to Us.

The cross of Christ is the pledge to us that the deepest suffering may be the condition of the highest blessing; the sign, not of God's displeasure, but of His widest and most compassionate love.—Dean Stanley.

Decision.

Any worthwhile decision is for life, and needs a foundation that will not crumble. When we make a life-decision for God we have His grace and power for our solid foundation.—The Exposition.

Foot Square and Square Foot.

A mathematician says there is no difference in area or quantity of surface between a foot square and a square foot, but there may be a difference in shape. A foot square must be a rectangular surface having four equal sides, measuring one foot long each. A square foot may also be a foot square, but it may be irregular in shape, say six inches wide and two feet long, or any shape so long as the area is equal to 144 square inches.

Give One For Christmas

The Tudor Sedan is a gift every member of the family will share. It adds to daily happiness. It will extend the joyous spirit of Christmas to every day of the year.

This new Ford type is of an exceptionally pleasing design. Wide doors opening forward, folding right front seat, and a roomy interior make it a convenient car to use; its high radiator, broad cowl, sun visor, and large windows make it stylish in appearance. Yet it is sold at the lowest price ever asked for a Sedan—only $590 f.o.b. Detroit.

The rich, permanent luster of its finish, the quiet good taste of its upholstery, and the ornamental treatment of its full-nicked hardware, all help to make it a car you are proud to drive.

This Car can be obtained through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

REVIVAL

Evangelistic Meetings Will Begin at the United Brethren Church January 6.

The members of the First United Brethren church, East Main street, are looking forward to a series of meetings, which are to commence Sunday evening, January 6, under the direction of the pastor, Rev. S. W. Hiles. Group meetings have been held and plans are being made for an old-fashioned revival and fervent heart searching sermons are being preached by the pastor, leading up to the special services. The prayer meetings are growing in number and many are consecrating their all and praying for a downpouring of the Holy Spirit. Rev. Hiles will be assisted in his work by Rev. G. W. Good, of Columbus, who comes well recommended as a spiritual song leader, chorus builder and making a specialty of training and leading junior choruses. All who want to hear the old-time gospel are welcome at the U. B. church. Come and bring your unsaved friend with you.

 SOCIAL CALENDAR ***

The younger set is having a gay time during the holiday season. Dances and entertainments are being given and they are enjoying themselves to their hearts' content. Mrs. Hildeburn Jones of Albany, New York who is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Jones, and Miss Helen Hays, of New York, who is the guest of her brother, A. Hulse Hays and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parsons Smith of Toledo, who are visiting her parents, Colonel and Mrs. C. E. Groce are being showered with social attentions. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. N. T. Weldon entertained to bridge; today Mrs. Hulse Hays entertained to tea and Mrs. Lloyd Jones to a six o'clock dinner. Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bennett will entertain the Dinner club in their honor and Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Moore will entertain in their honor. Tuesday afternoon the young folks will wind up the social entertainment with a leap year dance at the parish house.

Harry Betz entertained to a rabbit supper at the Betz restaurant Wednesday evening, December 26. Covers were laid for George Brown, Scoot Roof, Arthur Millet, Mrs. Lester Flora and sons, Earl and Maynard of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Leist and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Betz and the host.

 AMUSEMENTS ***

The character of Gale Brenon, portrayed by Dorothy Dalton as the star in the Paramount picture, "Fog Bound," which opens a 2 days run at the Met theater Thursday is one most unique in motion pictures.

Gale is the daughter of a revenue officer, living with her father on a Florida orange plantation. Next door lives Roger Wainright, a wealthy New York man, played by David Powell, who has bought this neighboring plantation for the purpose of being near Gale, whom he loves. Things progress more or less smoothly between the two until after a wild night spent at a nearby inn, Wainright finds himself a fugitive accused of the murder of Gale's father who had conducted a raid on the resort that evening.

But Gale believes in Roger, who asserts his innocence of the crime. She aids him to escape but later when she learns the facts, she gives chase and finds him in his home. Officers of the law are close behind and the girl has to do some quick thinking. It is a case of being loyal to her dead father or protecting the man she loves. Choosing the latter, Gale determines to shield her sweetheart. With the arrival of the officers comes the climax of the production—a climax that has much to do with making "Fog Bound" a picture different from anything you have yet seen.

This is an Irvin Willat production, including in the cast of supporting players Martha Mansfield, Maurice Costello and other prominent artists.

 Hotel Stenographer ***
BY ROE FULKERSON

"Next time that night clerk gives me orders," announced the Detective belligerently, "I shall tell him exactly where he gets off. I have been laying for him for two days."

"Kelly," remonstrated the Hotel Stenographer, "when a man goes around with a chip on his shoulder, he hasn't much time to attend to his work. He is too busy balancing the chip."

"Chip-bearers are always up in the air. When somebody can get you up in the air, they can generally cut the ground out from under you."

"It's a lot easier to get up in the air than to come down. I know a lot of widows, who had aviators and balloonists for husbands."

"I never saw a man lay for somebody that he didn't hatch out trouble for himself. Trouble is easy enough to find without looking for it. It's better to forgive and forget, because if that bird at the desk is as bad as you say he is, you are in a mental attitude to give him a good crack at you."

"Come over here!" She brushed the imaginary club off his shoulder. "There! Now the chip is gone, and you are not carrying any deadwood around with you. When the night clerk goes after you again, he will not get your goat."

CREW BELIEVED LOST

No Hope Held Out for Safety of Dirigible Dixmunde.

Paris, Dec. 27.—Floating somewhere in the Mediterranean or lost in the sandy plains of the Sahara, there ended the tragic tale of the rigid airship Dixmunde, with 48 men aboard. No hope is now held out for the safety of the dirigible. The fact that each man of the crew was supplied with both a parachute and life buoy, leaves a faint, lingering hope that some may be saved.

The prevailing theory is that the Dixmunde is lost, with all hands, at sea, but some experts believe that she drifted into the Sahara desert, in which case the officers, passengers and crew may even now be wildly wandering in search of water, as their supplies are bound to have given out long ago. The Dixmunde left Toulon Dec. 18 for an observation cruise over the Mediterranean and Northern Africa.

Mrs. Joe Tinker Dead.

Orlando, Fla., Dec. 27.—Mrs. Joe Tinker, wife of the famous Chicago shortstop of former years, killed herself here while temporarily mentally deranged, it was revealed by members of the family. It was reported that she had died suddenly following a nervous breakdown. She was 41 years old.

No-Mistake Check.

A California man is the patentee of a baggage check made in two parts, which must be placed together to form its number, preventing mistakes caused by checks with similar numbers.

SUDDEN DEATH

Charles A. Groce, Prominent Farmer, Succumbs to Heart Trouble.

C. A. Groce died suddenly at his home in Jackson township this morning at 9 o'clock. He had been ill only two days of heart trouble.

Charles Allen Groce was born in Walnut township March 3, 1864, and was the son of Allen and Lydia Crites Groce. He married Miss Jennie May December 27, 1891, who survives. The deceased was a member of the Reformed church of East Ringgold. He followed farming as an occupation.

Of his immediate family there are living one brother, and one sister; E. B. Groce and Mrs. Ella Riegel, of this county.

Taught Chinese Lacemaking.

The art of lacemaking was first taught to the Chinese of the Chefoo district by foreign missionaries about twenty-five years ago. They believed that by teaching lacemaking the women and girls would find profitable employment within their own homes, and the subsequent spread of the industry has fully justified their efforts. Although first taught in Chefoo, China Hsien was the first district to which lace was extensively made.

 MAYOR'S COURT ***

Joseph Hickey was fined $5 for gambling by Mayor Renick. The fine was paid and Hickey was released.

John Coon drunk and disorderly was given a fine of $5 which he paid and was released.

Clarence Evans, of Portsmouth, who was placed under arrest last Monday for having illegal possession of intoxicating liquor was given a fine of $100 and the costs added bringing the total up to $113.45 which he paid and went home to the River City, a sadder but wiser man.

FIRE NEAR GRANGE HALL.

The home of Dustin Corne, son-in-law of Mrs. Sarah Woolever, was destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning. Mr. Corne had arisen at an early hour, started a fire in the kitchen stove and went back to bed. He was awakened not long afterwards by dense smoke filling his bedroom and discovered that the house, a five room frame structure was in flames. He managed by quick work to save some of his household goods. The house was completely destroyed. The loss will amount to about $1500 of which $500 is covered by insurance in the Hummel & Plum agency.

THE SICK.

Samuel B. Kindler who has been quite ill of heart trouble is reported much better and is now out of danger.

Caddy Miller, who had a serious attack of heart trouble and other complications passed a very good night and is now resting easy.

T. A. Boyle, the insurance agent, who has been quite ill at his home in Park Place of bronchial trouble, is reported much better and is on the road to recovery.

O'CONNOR GOOD LEGION MAN

Kansas Member Has Seen Long Army Service, Much of Which Was Unexpected.

John H. O'Connor, an active worker of the American Legion in Kansas, declares that the unexpected has always led him into a line of work that he did not anticipate. In fact, the Kansas man has said that even his military career in the World war was somewhat unexpected, for an early admiration for things military caused him to become a member of the National Guard at the age of fifty-one. He was discharged with citations and the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Born in Frankfort, Ky., he moved to Kansas with his parents in 1879. Just as that state was emerging from a cluster of shacks and a few score of families to modern cities. He was educated in Winfield, and was thrown on his own resources early in life. He first tried southern California, but went "broke" 2,000 miles from home. He became a surveyor with a party in the Sierra Madre mountains, and accumulated enough money to get back to Kansas. A series of even less fortunate experiences followed, and in turn, O'Connor became a farmer, a laborer, a stone mason, a soldier, a printer, a traveling collector, until he finally returned to Winfield, where he remained until the World war. After discharge from the military service he was appointed postmaster of Winfield.

His military record is nearly as remarkable. He enlisted for service in the Kansas National Guard in 1885 and served until 1891. On the opening of the Spanish-American war, he volunteered for service. At discharge he was sergeant major of the Second Kansas Infantry. He then organized a company of the guard in Kansas in 1906, and had reached the rank of major in 1915, when detailed for border service. On May 28, 1917, he was detailed for a tour of instruction at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. In October, 1917, with 4,000 other Kansas men, he was mobilized and arrived in France in April, 1918, after a training period. He served in the Alsace sector, in the Argonne-Meuse, east of Verdun, and for a time was stationed in the Commerce area. Colonel O'Connor is now a member of the organized reserves.

A delegate to the Paris caucus of the American Legion, Colonel O'Connor has been an enthusiastic worker for the organization. He organized and was first commander of the Winfield post of the Legion, has served as state historian, and is an active member of the Forty and Eight.

RENAME BOATS FOR HEROES

Metropolitan Firemen's Legion Post of Boston Honors Members Who Gave Lives in War.

Believing that heroic deeds of members of the city fire department who perished in the World war should be commemorated, the Metropolitan Firemen's post of the American Legion in Boston has caused three fireboats to be renamed in honor of the department's dead heroes.

These three vessels, formerly known as Engine 31, Engine 44, and Engine 47 were rechristened as the John P. Dowd, Thomas A. Ring, and Angus MacDonald, respectively, at a special ceremony conducted by the Legion.

State and post officials, municipal officers and three thousand firemen of the department participated in the ceremony. Mayor James P. Curley was the principal speaker.

On the pilot house of each boat was placed a bronze tablet, reciting the valorous deeds of the man for whom the vessel was named. These tablets were unveiled by relatives of the war victims. A firing squad from the navy fired a salute as each boat was rechristened.

Home for California Post.

When the county supervisors of Tehama county, Cal., ordered the building of a new court house, the Red Bluff post of the American Legion succeeded in securing a portion of the old building for use as a Legion home. Only slight changes and repairs were necessary to make it into an excellent building for the Legion's purposes.

WASP BUILDS JUG

Constructs and Provisions Home
of Great Durability.

Living Food Is Stored Away in the Nest for Use of the Young Ones.

The very mention of the word "wasp" too often inspires us with a feeling of dread. But more intimate contact—not necessarily with the stinging lancet—brings about a deep regard for these interesting insects themselves and for their rights as well. Respect those rights, and we need have no fear of being stung. Besides, such fears are often folly, for many wasps cannot inflict a sting more painful than the prick of a pin.

Just as the daily life and works of a man command our admiration, so also do the lives and works of the wasps. The social wasps live together in peaceful communistic groups, in a common dwelling built by their united efforts, and there rear their young with extreme care.

The solitary wasps live apart, each living his or her own life independent of others of the species, except at the moment of wooing. For themselves they do not bother to build houses, but for their young they construct and provision homes that resemble jugs of great utility.

Let us watch the potter at her work. Selecting a site which instinct tells her is suited to her needs, she flies away on noiseless wings to a path, roadside, or other locality where she may scrape together a tiny pile of fine dust.

Now she busies herself making cement by moistening the dust with her saliva. The resulting mud is thoroughly kneaded, shaped into a miniature ball, and whisked away to the chosen site.

Pressed tightly against the twig, the cement soon sets, becoming both hard and surprisingly waterproof. The wasp is away mixing more material. Returning she adds another ball to the first. Again and again she comes with fresh supplies and proceeds quietly about her work.

A circular wall rises upon the foundation already laid. The whole looks like an acorn cap. As she continues the walls rise, curving toward a common center. Behold, an elfin fish globe!

Well might the work stop now, but the builder shows her artistry as she proceeds with her task. A graceful neck is fashioned about the globe's mouth, and a delicate flange is added, flaring out rufflike around it. She has finished. A fat little jug or vase of surprising symmetry and beauty waits to be filled.

Our jug builder, like other solitary wasps, provisions her nest with an abundance of fresh meat. Yes, more than fresh! It is alive! Putrid flesh would cause death.

Usually the victims of solitary wasps are stung in the majority of their nerve centers, and thus are rendered helpless, although life continues for weeks afterward.

When the nest is sufficiently provisioned with living food, the wasp lays an egg somewhere in the mass of disabled monsters. From it there hatches a tiny, helpless, grublike creature which proceeds to devour the nearest paralyzed giant. When all the food is consumed, this larva spins a cocoon, pupates, takes a long nap, and then emerges as a perfect wasp and an expert hunter.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

QUEER ENGLISH HAT STORE

Stock Has Been Kept on the Second Floor for More Than Hundred Years.

A man who attended the meetings of the international chamber of commerce came back by way of England. He wanted a hat, and a business acquaintance, a man who had lived for years in England, suggested a place to go.

The shop was small and somewhat dingy, but its windows held a hat which appealed. An old man appeared to be the only attendant.

"Wait a moment," said the shopkeeper, "and I'll bring you down a hat like the one in the window."

Bringing down the hat meant a trip up a flight of stairs in the corner of the shop, and while the proprietor was gone the American looked about the place. There were hat boxes on the shelves, but no hats were on display, except in the window.

Presently down came the proprietor with the hat. It seemed to be what the American wanted, but he asked to see some other colors. Back up the steps went the shopkeeper, and down he came with more hats.

The purchase was made, and while the hat was being wrapped the American made some inquiries regarding the business. He learned with astonishment that the hat store had been operated for more than a hundred years; that the present proprietor was the grandson of the founder, and that most of the stock of hats had been kept on the floor above the store ever since the business had been started.—Nation's Business.

LIKED FRANKNESS OF GIRL

Now New York Motorist Thinks That
There is a Limit to All Things.

Cyril thought the world of Drusilla. She was attractive and intelligent and possessed a quality that he considered above all price—she was always frank and outspoken.

A few days ago Cyril took Drusilla for a ride in his popular-priced run-about and anxious to show its merits went faster than the law allowed. A motorcycle policeman noticed this and stopped him.

"You'd better slow down, feller," he said severely but not rudely. "Take it easy, now," he cautioned and turned away.

Then Drusilla spoke her piece. "These cops," she said in a clear, loud voice, "think they know it all."

The policeman heard and came back. Removing his hat he took out a piece of paper and wrote on it. "There's a summons, feller," he said quietly. "You were going twenty-eight."

Two days later Cyril had paid a fine of $25 and three days later he had a new girl.—New York Sun and Globe.

Electric Eel's Power.

Enough electrical energy to stun the largest animal can be thrown out of the body of an electric eel, naturalists say, yet they have never been able to determine the exact source of the current. These eels abound in the marshes of Brazil and the Guianas, and the natives have such a respect for them that they frequently change the routes of roads and marsh trails after they have become infested with these reptiles. In spite of its external similarity, authorities claim that the electric eel has nothing to do with eels, but is in reality allied to the carp and catfish. It has electric organs running the whole length of the tail, which are modifications of the lateral muscles, and are supplied with numerous branches of the spinal nerves. These organs consist of longitudinal columns, each composed of a vast number of "electric plates." The posterior end of the organ is positive and the anterior end is negative, the current passing from the tail to the head.

Why Did They Leave?

That the ancient Chinese were settlers in Mexico is gradually becoming a historic certainty. Annals recently discovered at the foot of the famous Teotihuacan pyramids show inscriptions which were easily deciphered by experts at the Chinese embassy at Mexico City. Explorers 50 years ago saw something of Buddhist origin in some of the quaint customs of the pens. In old Chinese manuscripts in the Peking imperial palace there is mention of some land that was visited by Buddhist missionaries 500 years before Christ and where the new gospel was met with good reception. It is now thought that the land meant in these old scripts was Mexico. Still Columbus or Lef Ericson have not lost any of their adventures' glory.

Twenty Billion Buttons.

There are 20,000,000,000 buttons manufactured in this country annually, and the industry has grown to such proportions that it equals, in dollars invested, and value of products, the cutlery industry or the manufacture of oilcloths and linoleum. America has almost a monopoly on the manufacture of vegetable ivory buttons, which are made in enormous quantities from the togua nut. This nut grows plentifully in the northern part of South America and in Panama, and provides the greater part of the buttons used in men's clothing. If all the buttons made in a year in the United States were distributed equally among the population each man, woman and child would receive 182, with a few thousand left over for good measure.

LONG ILLNESS

David Beaver Died of Paralysis—Funeral Saturday Afternoon.

David Beaver died at his home, 161 East Mill street, Wednesday evening, December 26, at 8:15 o'clock of paralysis. He had been ill for a period of two years and five months. He was overcome with the heat while at work carpentering a house in Ashville and never fully recovered. Paralysis set in in a short time afterwards.

He was born in this city July 28, 1847, and was the son of Michael and Elizabeth Campbell Beaver. He married Miss Rose Waldelich in this city February 24, 1876. Mrs. Beaver three daughters and two sons, eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild survive. The sons and daughters are: Mrs. Grover C. Pickens, of this city; Fremont Beavers and Mrs. S. M. Spates, of Columbus; Mrs. Harold Moner, of Hamilton and Walter Beaver, of Cleveland.

Of his immediate family three brothers and one sister are living. They are Nelson Beaver, George Beaver and James Beaver, of Portsmouth and Mrs. Sarah Greer, of this city.

Christmas day the children of deceased gathered at the home and celebrated the holiday with their invalid father, little thinking that would be the last when they left for their homes Wednesday morning. He was a member of the Trinity Lutheran Lutheran church of this city.

The funeral services will be held at church Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. Rev. G. J. Troutman will officiate. Interment in Forest cemetery.

DIED OF CANCER

Mrs. Mary Tatman Passed Away at Her Home on South Scioto Street.

Mrs. Mary Tatman died at her home, 721 South Scioto street, Wednesday evening, December 26, at 9:30 o'clock. She had been ill of cancer for eleven months.

She was born in this county March 22, 1844, and was the daughter of John and Amanda Rute Brown. The deceased was married to Isaiah Tatman, who died in 1880. Two daughters, survive. They are Mrs. Rose Bell Smallwood and Mrs. Catharine Andrews of this city. Of her immediate family one brother, John Brown, of Cincinnati, is living. Ten grandchildren and four great-grandchildren also are living. The deceased was a member of the United Brethren church of this city.

The funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mr. George Andrews, 511 South Scioto street. Rev. Mr. Hiles will officiate. Interment will be in Forest cemetery. The pallbearers will be George Andrews, William Brown, Charles Emerine, James Smallwood, Don Morris and Bernie Bailey.

RENTAL LIBRARY

Small Charge Will be Made for Books Until Original Cost is Paid.

Through the interest of a number of Circleville ladies, a gift of money and books has been made to the Circleville Public library. This donation makes possible the starting of a "Rental Collection" of some of the most recent books which are in unusual demand.

Seventeen books comprise the original collection. A charge of two cents a day will be made for rental. The money received will be used to add other books to the "Rental Library." When enough money has been paid in on any one book to pay for its original cost that book becomes part of the regular collection of the library and no further charge is made for its issue.

The interest being shown promises well for the success of the project and the library will, in the course of the year, benefit by the addition of many volumes which otherwise would not be available to the patrons.

Books, now ready are:—

Caine—Woman of Knockaloe.
Cather—Lost Lady.
Diver—Lonely Furrow.
Fletcher—Markenmore Mystery.
Graves—Just Steward.
Kerr—One Thing is Certain.
Maugham—East of Suez. (A play).

In Memoriam.

Editor Union-Herald:—Louisa Kane eldest daughter of Maurice and Elizabeth Kane was born in Hocking county, Ohio, October 30, 1848, and departed this life at her home in Pickaway county Ohio, December 11, 1923, aged 75 years, one month and 11 days. She was united in marriage to James C. Hinton February 18, 1873, who preceded her in death more than two years ago. To this union were born three sons and one daughter. She was converted and united with the M. E. church at Bethany, Hocking county; later in life she had her membership transferred to the Salem church of which she remained a faithful member until transferred to the church triumphant. She will be greatly missed in her church society as she was always interested in the activities of the church and was a member of the W. C. T. U. to which she gave liberally toward its support. As a wife she was true and faithful, as a mother loving and kind, as a neighbor good and obliging and beloved and respected by all who knew her. She suffered much during her last sickness but bore it with fortitude and patience. She expressed no fear of death, her end was peace.

She leaves to mourn her death three sons; Josiah L. Edward G., and Harvey K. Hinton at home; one daughter Viola M. Hinton and one granddaughter, Mrs. Nolan Bitzer; three brothers; John I. Kane, of Logansport, Indiana; George Kane of Lancaster, Ohio; Charles C. Kane of Columbus, Ohio, and one sister, Mrs. Margaret Delong of Lancaster, Ohio, and many other relatives and friends by whom she will be sadly missed, but we feel that our loss will be her eternal gain.

The funeral services were held at the Salem M. E. church Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. W. S. Fisher officiated. Interment in the Whisler cemetery.

UNDERWENT OPERATION.

John Ryan, the junior member of the drug firm of Hamilton & Ryan, whose shoulder was dislocated and badly injured in a fall near the corner of Court and Main streets, underwent an operation at Mt. Carmel hospital Columbus, Wednesday. Mr. Ryan was on the operation table for fully three hours. It was found that the condyle, the radius head of the humerus was broken off and the ball had to be removed, as the end of the bone which holds the ball in the socket was broken off. It is thought that nature, will in time, grow a new ball and that Mr. Ryan will retain the use of his left arm. Dr. Farrer performed the operation assisted by Dr. Courtright.

CONGRESS MAY ORDER PROBE

Young Wood's Operations Likely to Be Investigated.

MADE MILLION IN WALL STREET

War Department Officials Admit No Action Was Taken to Investigate the Young Lieutenant's Speculations—Latter Now Serving as Military Aide to His Father in Manila. Secretary Weeks Issues Statement.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Responsible war department officials made the frank admission that no action, official or unofficial, has been taken to investigate Second Lieutenant Osborne Wood's Wall street speculations, estimated to have netted him $750,000 to $2,500,000.

Congress is expected to order an investigation immediately after the holiday recess. Representative Frear of Wisconsin said young Wood's operations would fall within the scope of his resolution, now before the house, to probe the activities of all persons associated with Major General George Leonard Wood as governor general of the Philippines. Osborne Wood is serving as military aide to his father at the present time in Manila.

The attitude of the war department is regarded as of unusual interest owing to the fact that the story of Lieutenant Wood's huge stock and bank balances was laid before the secretary of war three months ago.

The statement attributed to Secretary Weeks in Boston "that he had been obliged to check certain financial operations of Lieutenant Wood" is not sustained here. The official war department version is that friends of Major General Wood came to the secretary and urged action. They were advised to take the matter up privately with the young officer's father. Among those who made such an appeal to the secretary of war was Henry Thompson of New York and Chicago, Osborne Wood's father-in-law.

This appears to eliminate the rich father-in-law as the source from which Osborne Wood obtained his original capital to gamble in Wall street. It is established that Major General Wood, the father, is a man of small means.

Revelation Not Unexpected.

Official representatives here of the Philippine government charge that Osborne Wood's advent in high finance dates from the period of his father's campaign for the Republican nomination for president four years ago. In this quarter it is reported that certain American financial interests during the pre-convention period of 1920 "carried" Osborne Wood on a deal for between $200,000 and $300,000 of oil stock, the profit from which gave him a start for future speculations. It is not suggested in any way that Major General Wood had knowledge of such a transaction.

The Philippine government's representatives here were greatly excited over developments. They said such a revelation was not unexpected. It is charged, unofficially that Osborne Wood is responsible for much of the feeling that exists in Manila against his distinguished father.

A surprising feature of the developments was the revelation that Lieutenant Wood conducted his Wall street campaign from his post in far away Manila largely as the result of nightly cabled "tips" from New York.

WOULD END DEADLOCK

Proposal Would Permit Commerce Committee to Elect Chairman.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Senate leaders are considering a proposal to permit the interstate commerce committee to select its own chairman, thereby ending the deadlock which has existed since congress opened.

In the opinion of Republican senators this procedure would result in the election of Senator Cummins of Iowa, whom they have supported on every ballot in the senate. The committee is composed of 10 Republicans and seven Democrats.

Insurgents in the LaFollette group, who have been opposing Cummins from the start, are to hold a meeting a day or so before congress reconvenes on Jan. 3, and discuss what form of strategy they will adopt when the balloting is resumed. They may decide to vote for Smith on a few more ballots, unless it is agreed to throw the whole contest into the committee and allow it to be decided by its 17 members.

NAVY BUDGET MAY BE CUT

Destroyer Disaster Figures in House Committee Hearing.

Washington, Dec. 27.—A fight to cut the requested $375,000,000 navy budget was forecast when the house appropriations committee called for the proceedings of the courtmartial of naval officers responsible for the Point Honda destroyer crash Sept. 8. It was intimated that the committee would debate whether to charge against the appropriation for 1924-25 the amount lost when the seven destroyers went on the rocks. It is estimated at between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000. Chairman Madden of Illinois, it was pointed out, is essentially a "small navy" man.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt will go before the committee and Rear Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of the bureau of operations, will carry the papers demanded. Secretary Denby concluded his testimony just prior to the holidays adjournment, and was cautioned that he should give out no part of the proceedings. It is understood he was questioned sharply as to the destroyer disaster and the findings of the courtmartial held at San Diego.

NEW COMPANY TO GO AFTER MUSCLE SHOALS

Henry Ford Expected to Have Strong Opposition.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Henry Ford will have opposition when his new bid for Muscle Shoals is submitted to the war department and congress, it was revealed here.

Information has reached Washington that a joint bid for the big Tennessee river power project will be submitted by the Alabama Power company and the Tennessee Electric Power company. These two companies operate in the territory of Alabama and Tennessee that would be served directly by the Muscle Shoals development. They also have physical connections with the Georgia Railway and Power company, and through it with the Southern Power company, operating in Georgia and the Carolinas.

The Alabama company, which recently purchased the Gorgas steam plant and transmission lines, which Ford sought in his original bid, was a bidder for Muscle Shoals last year, after Ford had submitted his offer. The Tennessee company is a new factor in bidding for Muscle Shoals. One of the strong objections raised to the Alabama company by members of congress is that it has been controlled by British capital through Canadian bondholders. In this new plan to submit a joint bid with the Tennessee company a move is seen partially to get around this foreign ownership objection. The Tennessee company is financed by the Clark interests of Philadelphia.

PROGRESS MADE BY COMMITTEE

Administrative Features May Be Lifted Out of Tax Bill.

SEPARATE MEASURE PROBABLE

Step Would Clear Way For Speedy Action When the Whole Committee Resumes Consideration of the Tax Reduction Plan After the Holidays. Term, Administrative Provisions, Considerably Broadened.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Good progress was made by the voluntary subcommittee of the house ways and means committee in sorting out the administrative features of the Mellon tax reduction bill. The purpose was to clear the way for speedy action when the whole committee resumes consideration of the measure after the holidays.

The subcommittee will consider a recommendation to the whole committee on the feasibility of lifting out the administrative features and reporting them to the house in a separate bill, leaving the actual cuts in tax rates recommended by the administration for a second measure. Sentiment was said by subcommittee members to be strongly in favor of this course.

The first reason for such action, it was explained, was that there are no serious differences of opinion among the Republicans, Democrats and progressives on this part of the Mellon plan, which would insure early action on a separate bill. Secondly, it was said, by following this procedure the senate and the finance committee on that side, which, under the constitution, must await action by the house on all revenue and tariff legislation, would be given something to begin work on while the house was completing the remainder of the program.

When the house later shall pass the bill embodying the second half of the Mellon proposals—the actual reductions in income and other tax rates—the senate, it was pointed out, could very easily combine the two measures. Or if the tax cuts met with a prolonged fight and appeared in any serious danger, which is not now expected, the administrative bill could be put through separately. This would simplify and facilitate the operation of the present law and give the treasury $60,000,000 in additional revenue by stopping up loopholes for evasions.

In paving the way for possible separate action, the subcommittee considerably broadened the term "administrative provisions." It was decided to include under this heading all features of the bill which do not involve changes of policy or rate alteration. Two most important sections were brought under this classification by common consent. They are: Putting allowances for capital losses on the same basis as capital gains, expected to produce $25,000,000 a year in additional revenue, and limiting deductions for non-business losses and interest paid, estimated to yield $35,000,000 additional annually.

Attacked by Alligator.

New York, Dec. 27.—An alligator's dislike for a dead pigeon nearly cost John O'Brien, Brooklyn zoo keeper, his leg. Captured in the swamps of Georgia, the alligator was being formally presented to the animal court with much pomp and ceremony, while several officials of the city looked on. O'Brien, anxious to show off his charge, threw the amphibian a dead pigeon. The alligator, accustomed only to live birds, leaped 10 feet and caught O'Brien's leg between his jaws. William Ostrander, an assistant to O'Brien, then amazed the lookers-on by grabbing the jaws of the alligator, pulling them apart and releasing the keeper's leg. O'Brien was painfully wounded.

FOURTEEN DIE IN ASYLUM FIRE

Frame Annex of Illinois Insane Hospital Destroyed.

INMATES FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Fifty Patients Escape From Cordon of Hospital Guards and Police. Ruins May Yield a Dozen More Bodies, Officials Say—Seven Hundred Patients Housed in the Annex, Most of Them Being Ill.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Four thousand inmates battled for freedom when fire destroyed annex No. 1 of the Illinois state hospital for insane at Dunning, a Chicago suburb.

Bodies of 14 patients were dragged from the ruins. The debris may yield more bodies, according to hospital authorities. Fifty patients escaped the cordon of hospital guards and police thrown about the institution when the fire alarm sounded.

Most of the patients were in dining halls when the fire broke out. Dr. C. D. Coffey, in charge of the hospital, said 700 patients were housed in the annex. Most of these were ill with tuberculosis, as well as mentally deranged. A number were known as "violent" cases.

Ten minutes after the fire was discovered fire fighting equipment and heavy details of police were being rushed to the hospital from Chicago. The annex was a frame building, a two-story structure, 400 feet long. It was two blocks from the administration building, a fireproof structure. But surrounding the annex were a number of cottages and small frame buildings, all housing their quotas of patients. The roofs of these buildings caught fire repeatedly.

Driven from the mess halls by guards the 4,000 inmates rushed to the gates of the high enclosure about the asylum grounds, trying to escape. Two hospital employees, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Carver, are believed to be among the dead.

Police officers and hospital guards began scouring the city for the patients who escaped while the flames raged. Dr. Coffey, after checking the inmates, said he was unable to determine how many had escaped and how many may have lost their lives. The ruins may yield a dozen more bodies, he said. The administration building was used as a concentration point for the inmates as they were rounded up by guards.

The wildest disorder prevailed in early stages of the fire. The patients ran screaming from the burning building. Their cries were taken up by inmates from other units of the institution. Guards and police fought to quiet them. Numbers of patients, after reaching safety, attempted to re-enter the burning building, but were beaten back by guards.

HIGH OFFICIALS SAFE

No Charge of Conspiracy Can Be Placed Against Them.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Possibility of high government officials facing a grand jury as conspirators to violate the prohibition law, following the capital's biggest bootleg scandal, has faded. No charge of the sort could be brought against them, though it were definitely shown that they had been patrons of the Scarborough-Morris ring, alleged members of which were rounded up last week. This was the statement, solidly backed by law, of prosecuting officers of the government. It was pointed out that the buyer and seller of illicit liquor commit entirely different acts, that they are not actuated by the same criminal intent and that they are, therefore, not acting in conspiracy.

The veil of mystery thrown over the famous list, said to have contained the names of 1,400 prominent patrons of the ring, remains unpierced. Local officials declare they will do everything in their power to bring the vanished notations to light, but where they now rest, even if not destroyed, is as much a puzzle as ever.

Stork Hovers Over Palace.

Rome, Dec. 27.—It was disclosed that the queen has ordered a "baby rousseau," thus confirming the report that the Princess Yolanda is soon to become a mother.

Reckless Driver Soaked.

Cleveland, Dec. 27.—Long workhouse sentences were given traffic violators in Judge Alva R. Corlett's court. Three men were sent to the workhouse for six months, one for three months and one for 30 days.

PRODUCED FROM ARSENIC

New Poison Gas the Latest Achievement in Chemistry.

Berlin, Dec. 27.—Not coal oil, but arsenic, will be the trump of the future in the international race for power. The country that controls the largest arsenic deposits and organizes the greatest production will be the victor in the next war.

That is the prediction being whispered in high European diplomatic circles, where war is still accepted as a matter of course. It is based on the latest achievements in chemistry—a new poison gas produced from arsenic, which is said to surpass anything heretofore dreamed of in the way of power to annihilate. This gas will be the main weapon of future armies.

According to the latest statistics, arsenic production is greatest in the United States. England is mainly dependent on Canada and other possessions for its supply. Figures showing highest arsenic production for the last four years are: United States, 10,470 tons; Germany, 5,116 tons; Canada, 3,074 tons; France, 2,261 tons, and Japan, 1,299 tons.

Sue For $110,000.

Cleveland, Dec. 27.—Suits totaling $110,000 were filed in federal court here against the Pennsylvania railroad. Three Canton persons, Roy A. Fink, Mabel Edwards and Alice Edwards, brought suits for $20,000 each for injuries suffered when the auto driven by Fink was struck by a Pennsylvania trolley at a Canton grade crossing, Jan. 3, 1923. Clifford G. Thorsen, also of Canton, filed suit for $50,000, claiming permanent injuries when he was forced to jump from the cab of a Pennsylvania train to avoid a threatened wreck, Aug. 26, 1923. Thorsen was a railway fireman.

WEEKS' ADMISSION

Checked Certain Financial Operations of Young Wood.

Boston, Dec. 27.—Secretary of War Weeks admitted that he had been obliged officially to check certain financial operations of Lieutenant Osborne Cutler Wood, son and military aide to Governor General Wood of the Philippines, who is reputed to have amassed a fortune of more than $1,000,000 in 14 months.

It was learned that Wood probably made his money in sugar speculation. Secretary Weeks was interviewed about the financial dealings of Lieutenant Wood at his home in West Newton, where he is spending the holidays. He said:

"Some months ago there was brought to my attention the fact that large checks were coming through American banks to the credit of Lieutenant Osborne C. Wood, who is stationed in Manila. The amounts involved seemed to me to be beyond the probable financial responsibility of the lieutenant, and as he was an officer in the army, I directed that his operations should stop. This order was immediately complied with. Other than that I considered his financial operations entirely personal to himself and that the subject was not one that warranted departmental action."

LOVE AND ROMANCE

By CORONA REMINGTON

© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

IT'S dreadful not to be the least bit in love; not even to have anything hanging around to fall in love with, and to see everywhere couples looking at each other with that how-I-adore-you, darling-how-could-I-live-without-you expression on their faces. Everybody had somebody—except Violette Ramsdale.

Then came John Hodges. He walked into her life as easily and unexpectedly as—well, as most lovers do.

"And so your name is Violette? May I see it?" he asked as they parted.

A perplexed little expression chased itself across Miss Ramsdale's face. "I—I'm glad you like it," she said after a moment. "Yes, you may call me that."

Hodges took her here, there and everywhere. Each evening they were together and often lunch time found them seated across the table from each other in some quiet little restaurant. He wooed her impetuously, sent her flowers and brought her candy.

"You're so good to me," she said gratefully one evening as he was rising to go.

"How could any one help being good to you?" he asked. "You're so—so absolutely adorable."

Violette flushed and trembled. He was going to propose, she knew. What should she say? What should she do? "Violette, I—I love you."

He was drawing her into his arms, his eyes looked big and almost startled, so close to hers. "You lovely thing," he said reverently, kissing her.

It was over, the experience of her life, the one for which she had been waiting so long. She had been wooed and won—and kissed. That night, after he had gone and she had retired, she stared at the dark ceiling and lived over the blissful evening. She didn't want to go to sleep. How could she for a moment even endure the idea of shutting out all those thrilling memories with sleep? Sleep was for those who were bored and unhappy.

Then, in going over his every word for the fortieth time it occurred to her that, after all, he had not really proposed, that is, he had not actually said the words, but of course he meant it; did he mean it? The rest of the night was not so pleasant, and by the time she finally fell asleep she was glad that she had only let him have two little kisses.

The next morning she was decidedly uneasy, and she remembered now a slight feeling, not exactly of mistrust, but perhaps more a feeling of not complete trust, that she had always had when she was with him. But it was so sweet to be loved, and she had been so lonely.

"What makes you so quiet and solemn today?" asked her employer, Jim Foster. "You don't seem a bit like your happy little self."

Violette flushed and looked down at her typewriter.

"I don't believe it's anything," she said shakily.

"Well, if you need any help or advice, Violette, remember Jim Foster's right here."

She flashed him a grateful look and turned to the jangling telephone.

"This is John, darling," came the voice over the wire. "I'm so sorry I have a business engagement and can't get down to take you to lunch today. So, so sorry, dear."

So she went alone at noon and changed to go to a dainty little tea-room a few blocks down the street. She would not go to any of their favorite haunts. It would make her feel all the lonelier. She had been sitting there a few minutes when she recognized the back in front of her as John's own well-tailored back. He was leaning across the table, talking to a pretty girl.

"You know I love you," she heard him say in a low tone, and in her horrified mind Violette could see his eyes glowing as they had when he had kissed her the night before. She jumped up and hurried out of the tea-room unobserved.

"Why, what's the matter, Violette?" her employer asked as she rushed into the office. "You haven't been gone ten minutes and you look as if you'd seen a ghost."

"Oh, nothing, nothing nothing!" she wailed, bursting into tears.

"Well, there's only one place for you to cry, and that's right here."

He held her quietly in his arms and stroked her soft hair.

"You know," he was saying gently, "you need a man like me to shoulder your woes, and when you are tired of running around with that he-vamp I'm going to propose to you, dear. I've been watching you, though, and I believe in letting a girl have it out. Sooner or later you'll find out he's not the kind for you, else I'm very much mistaken in him or you."

It was not romantic, this second proposal of hers, but it was so comfortable and safe and good.

"I'm through," she answered meekly.

ly a moment later. "I've found out, but I would have had to have that first experience to be able to appreciate you. I know now there's a big difference between love and romance. There's some love that's romance, but there's a whole lot of romance that isn't love."

"Right you are, but ours shall be both," he promised, happily.

Some New Terms Needed.

Wife—I can't find words to express my opinion of you.

Hub—There aren't any. You've tried them all.—Boston Transcript.

The Smile That Failed.

A smile, I've heard somebody say, brings thirteen muscles into play; while if you want a frown to thrive you've got to work up sixty-five. To-day with luck I chanced to meet. I found a quarter on the street. I picked it up and right away brought thirteen muscles into play. I blessed my luck, but later on, I grieve to say, the smile was gone, and sixty-five muscles worked like mad, for I found out the coin was bad.—Boston Transcript.

The Palmers.

The name Palmer was given to those persons, during the Middle Ages, who had made pilgrimages to the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem, and had brought home palm branches in token of having accomplished the journey. On his return home from the Holy Land the pilgrim repaired to the church to render thanks for his successful journey and gave the palm branch to the priest, who placed it on the altar.

Links Hawaii and Arctic.

Hawaii has established radio contact with the Arctic seas, swept by icebergs, and the sunny shores of the tropical Pacific islands have met through the ether, according to messages received from the exploration party in charge of Capt. Donald B. MacMillan by Jack Barnsley, operator of a Prince Rupert amateur station and member of the American Radio Relay league.

Hard to Please.

"My ideal husband," said the girl who had been reading cheap novels, "must be a strong, silent man, full of grit, and able to bear the heat and burden of the day without flinching—one who will not hear a word said about me, and who will not utter an unkind word himself." "What you want is a deaf and dumb coal heaver," murmured her friend.

Author of Munchausen Tales.

The author of "Baron Munchausen's Narratives"—those fantastic tales of adventure—Rudolph Erich Raspe, was a refugee in England from German justice when he wrote his masterpiece that made him a charter member of the Ananias club, says the Detroit News. Raspe, a native of Hanover, Germany, was curator of the museum of Cassel, and was accused of stealing medals from a collection in his charge. He fled to England to escape prosecution. He obtained employment at the Dolcoath mines in Cornwall, and while there engaged created Baron Munchausen. Raspe died in Ireland in 1794 at the age of fifty-seven.

Children of the Desert.

A passion for snuff and the vanity they display in their personal appearance are the principal failings of the people of the Sahara. These with their habit of incessantly asking for presents, are the worst traits of their character, and may surely be forgiven them for the honor they pay to their women, for the love they display to their children and for the kindness they show to their animals, says the Geographical Journal. Their children are admirably brought up; they have wonderful manners, respect for their elders and unselfishness to one another to a degree which would make European parents envious.

Changing Color With Heat.

Members of the Physical Society in London were interested at a recent meeting by an exhibition of specimens of paint which change their color with variations of the temperature. One of these paints is red at ordinary temperatures, but turns black in a few seconds when warmed in front of a stove, or otherwise heated to 206 degrees Fahrenheit. Another paint is yellow until heated to a temperature of 113 degrees Fahrenheit, when it becomes dark red. They are called "heat-indicating paints," but are little more than scientific curiosities.

Possibilities In Honduras.

With a population estimated at 600,000 and an area approximately equal to that of Pennsylvania, Honduras has abundant room for development. It has a tropical climate with few of the usual disadvantages. The interior is mountainous and salubrious, with considerable rich land suitable for diversified farming and fruit growing, while all of the remainder, even the deep mountain slopes, is used for pasturage.

Plants Looking Like Stones.

Nature makes animals look like plants, plants like animals, and both, on rare occasions, like inanimate objects. A striking example of the last mood are stones like plants found in southwest Africa. There are several species of this succulent vegetable resembling various kinds of stones or pebbles, and in general they resemble the fat cactus family, but without thorns, says the Detroit News. Their brown color is a cunning protection against the hungry wild animals that roam the country, for which they would not only furnish an attractive food but a sort of cooling drink. As a further disguise and protection these "living stones" are usually found associated with real stones, smooth stones of dry creek-beds, which they closely imitate in color as well as shape.

Sleepy Hollow Church.

Sleepy Hollow church, at Tarrytown, N. Y., made famous by Washington Irving, recently celebrated its two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary. The old edifice is just like it was when Ichabod Crane sang in the choir, says the Detroit News. Within its gray walls one may still hear the demi-semi-quavers of Crane's psalmody, for it was here that the luckless hero of the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow" lifted his voice to the enjoyment of every fair maid in the community. The church has undergone only slight alterations, and is still used for worship on Sunday afternoons in summer. Thousands of visitors make pilgrimage there each year. The church is right in the heart of the country about which Irving wrote.

Dad's Part in the Game.

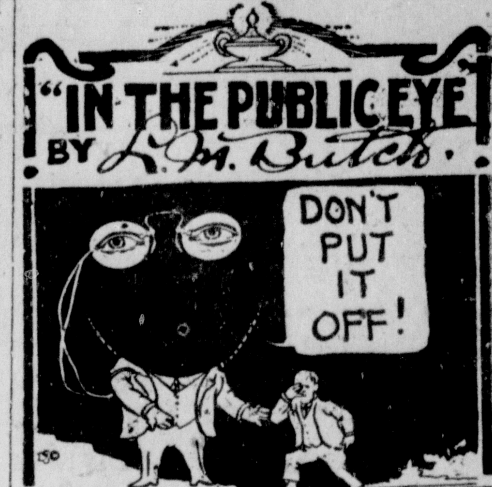

One day when Herbert was riding with his father in his machine, he told Herbert not to forget to remind him of a certain errand. After going a little farther his father thought of another thing he wished to be reminded of. Herbert thought seriously for a moment and then turned to his father and said, "Well, dad, I guess you'll please have to remind me to remind you."

Warns of Mine Danger.

The United States bureau of mines has developed a novel means of giving an alarm of danger in all mines where compressed air is made use of throughout the workings. An ill-smelling substance is injected into the compressed air line, and in a few minutes the odor has been spread through all parts of the mine, and will be instantly recognized by the workmen.

Location of Fireplace

an Important Feature

From an architectural viewpoint a fireplace chimney may be made much use of in ornamenting the outside of a home. It gives variety in spacing and style of decoration that architects have put to good use. As an exponent of the character of the inside of a house we could scarcely give passers-by a better impression than by this means.

If, on the other hand, one is willing to sacrifice this addition to the outside of his home, much may be gained on the inside by means of this sacrifice. By placing the chimney between walls an extra fireplace may be secured with but little additional cost. For instance, if the chimney is placed in the wall between the living room and the library an opening may be made from both of these rooms. In one home the chimney is utilized in four rooms.

In building fireplaces some general directions in regard to placing should be observed. If your room is quite large and the fireplace to be depended upon entirely for heating, the fireplace should be in the side of the room. If the room is narrow this would not be so well for the reason that one could not arrange the furniture advantageously and at the same time be comfortable himself. Everything would be too close to the fire.

If the shape of the room allows it, the fireplace should, for esthetic reasons, be so placed that it is in full view upon entering the room. A fireplace in a room is the dominant note in that room and must be accorded the place proper to its importance. Besides this, a room must not be furnished with its side to the arriving guests or members of the family. As the fireplace is the most important decorative unit of the room all the other pieces of furniture must be placed with this in mind.

Costume Slips Great Help to Dressmakers

Quite elaborate appearing negligees are evolved through the simple method of buying one of the lovely costume slips and draping over it a loose coat of chiffon or lace, which may be fur-trimmed. These costume slips are a great help to the home dressmaker, whether she be making a negligee, a new frock or altering a last year's dress.

There are particularly lovely slips of white lace and voile, with inset motifs of white lace. These are intended to be worn under a lace or chiffon dress or negligee. Several of the lace motifs are set into the front of the slip to give the effect of a panel, while other motifs are joined to form a deep yoke. The same model worked out in material suitable to wear under a more formal dress is of chiffon and gold lace.

For wear with coat dresses there are slips made like coats which fasten down the entire length of the front. These slips fasten with satin ribbons, run through a narrow insertion placed at a low waistline. A slip made on these lines is of pink net, trimmed with real lace dyed in a matching shade. It is further ornamented with fine hand-tucking and embroidery done on the net. For dresses and negligees having scalloped hems there are slips cut in deep points and finished with embroidery or bound with self material.

Blue Promises to Be Popular Fall Color

Blue for wearing apparel gives every indication of unusual popularity during fall season. This popular color runs the chromatic scale from hedge-sparrow's egg blue to a shade so deep as almost to be black, and finds its fullest expression in the three-piece suits and tailors which fashion has decreed for fall.

Compensation for the slightly shorter skirts of these costumes is afforded by the somewhat longer coats, the three-quarter length being especially emphasized by leading designers. Coat sleeves are for the most part narrow and straight and elaborate ornamentation has given way to narrow bands of fur, such as white rabbit, marabout, leopard and reindeer.

Indoor Ivy Boxes.

Painted tin boxes having a green lattice or trellis attached to the top are delightful when filled with growing ivy and placed against the wall. They come in several colors.

Great Wine Cellar in Roumania.
The most capacious wine cellar in the world is owned by the Roumanian government. A railway tunnel 2,600 feet long could not be used for the purpose for which it was intended because of inferior construction, so it was leased to a wine dealer, who turned it into a storehouse for wines.

LESSON FOR DECEMBER 30

REVIEW

THE WORLD FOR CHRIST

GOLDEN TEXT—"They shall abundantly utter the memory of Thy great goodness, and shall sing of Thy righteousness."—Ps. 146:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Favorite Missionary Stories.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What We Have Learned About Missions.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is My Missionary Duty?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Present Missionary Outlook.

Two plans for the review are suggested:

1. The Summary Method. This will be to lift out the main facts of each lesson and state the leading teaching thereof. The following brief statements are suggested:

Lesson 1. God called Abraham out from his country and kindred to make him the head of the nation through which the Redeemer was to come. The leading lesson is that God blesses men and nations in order that they may be a blessing. This is the universal law of the spiritual realm.

Lesson 2. Israel was given an exalted position in order that she might make God known to the nations. The message they were directed to proclaim was that God was the Savior of all the nations.

Lesson 3. Israel's geographical position afforded the best opportunity to carry the Gospel to the whole world. She was literally in the center of the world. Special privilege carries with it special responsibility.

Lesson 4. The burden of the message of the prophets was that God is great in mercy to all the nations when they penitently turn to Him from their sins.

Lesson 5. Strong drink works great ruin to all. The only way to escape this ruin is to totally abstain from its use.

Lesson 6. The Psalter, the hymn book of the Jewish nation, has as its central message the Spirit of God's grace to the world. Its aim is to call men back to God.

Lesson 7. Jesus Christ was the pre-eminent missionary. His compassion for the multitude moved Him to send forth laborers in His vineyard. The missionary message to the lost world is that through the sacrificial death of Christ salvation is offered to all.

Lesson 8. Christ saved men in order that they might go to the lost world with the message of His salvation. Those who have experienced His saving power will go forth to tell others.

Lesson 9. The Holy Spirit is the power which will enable the disciples of Christ to witness His salvation. He will not only enable them to witness, but to endure afflictions and trials.

Lesson 10. The Gospel was intended for all the world. God in His providence permits persecutions and strife to scatter the disciples in order that they might witness.

Lesson 11. In spite of opposition, Paul preached the Gospel in the capital city of Rome. He was not ashamed to proclaim it there, for it was the power of God.

Lesson 12. Christ will come and establish His kingdom over the whole earth. Peace and righteousness shall then cover the whole earth.

II. The Question Method. These questions should be assigned to the members of the class the previous week. The following samples are given in Peloubet's Select Notes:

1. What were the missionary characteristics of Abraham?

2. What was God's missionary purpose for Israel?

3. What in Israel's geographical situation made it easy to be a missionary nation?

4. What was the missionary teaching of Jonah?

5. What is the missionary teaching of Israel?

6. Quote a missionary verse of some Psalm.

7. Name some particulars in which Christ was the ideal missionary.

8. Why should every Christian be a missionary?

9. Whence came the missionary power of the early church?

10. Describe the gradual outreach of the early church.

11. Why must Christian missions cover the earth?

12. What will Christ's universal reign do for mankind?

The Lord Knoweth Them.
In the lack of all human recognition, surely the Lord knoweth them that are His. His great heart of love will go out to them, till He has done for them exceedingly abundantly above all that they ask or think.—S. F. Smiley.

The Pledge to Us.
The cross of Christ is the pledge to us that the deepest suffering may be the condition of the highest blessing; the sign, not of God's displeasure, but of His wisest and most compassionate love.—Dean Stanley.

Decision.
Any worth-while decision is for life, and needs a foundation that will not crumble. When we make a life-decision for God we have his grace and power for our solid foundation.—The Exposition.

Foot Square and Square Foot.

A mathematician says there is no difference in area or quantity of surface between a foot square and a square foot, but there may be a difference in shape. A foot square must be a rectangular surface having four equal sides, measuring one foot long each. A square foot may also be a foot square, but it may be irregular in shape, say six inches wide and two feet long, or any shape so long as the area is equal to 144 square inches.

Give One For Christmas

The Tudor Sedan is a gift every member of the family will share. It adds to daily happiness. It will extend the joyous spirit of Christmas to every day of the year.

This new Ford type is of an exceptionally pleasing design. Wide doors opening forward, folding right front seat, and a roomy interior make it a convenient car to use; its high radiator, broad cowl, sun visor, and large windows make it stylish in appearance. Yet it is sold at the lowest price ever asked for a Sedan—only $590 f.o.b. Detroit.

The rich, permanent luster of its finish, the quiet good taste of its upholstery, and the ornamental treatment of its full-nicked hardware, all help to make it a car you are proud to drive.

This Car can be obtained through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

REVIVAL

Evangelistic Meetings Will Begin at the United Brethren Church January 6.

The members of the First United Brethren church, East Main street, are looking forward to a series of meetings, which are to commence Sunday evening, January 6, under the direction of the pastor, Rev. S. W. Hiles. Group meetings have been held and plans are being made for an old-fashioned revival and fervent heart searching sermons are being preached by the pastor, leading up to the special services. The prayer meetings are growing in number and many are consecrating their all and praying for a downpouring of the Holy Spirit. Rev. Hiles will be assisted in his work by Rev. G. W. Good, of Columbus, who comes well recommended as a spiritual song leader, chorus builder and making a specialty of training and leading junior chorus. All who want to hear the old-time gospel are welcome at the U. B. church. Come and bring your unsaved friend with you.

* * * * ***

The character of Gale Brenon, portrayed by Dorothy Dalton as the star in the Paramount picture, "Fog Bound," which opens a 2 days run at the Met theater Thursday is one most unique in motion pictures.

Gale is the daughter of a revenue officer, living with her father on a Florida orange plantation. Next door lives Roger Wainright, a wealthy New York man, played by David Powell, who has bought this neighboring plantation for the purpose of being near Gale, whom he loves. Things progress more or less smoothly between the two until after a wild night spent at a nearby inn, Wainright finds himself a fugitive accused of the murder of Gale's father who had conducted a raid on the resort that evening.

But Gale believes in Roger, who asserts his innocence of the crime. She aids him to escape but later when she learns the facts, she gives chase and finds him in his home. Officers of the law are close behind and the girl has to do some quick thinking. It is a case of being loyal to her dead father or protecting the man she loves. Choosing the latter, Gale determines to shield her sweetheart. With the arrival of the officers comes the climax of the production—a climax that has much to do with making "Fog Bound" a picture different from anything you have yet seen.

This is an Irvin Willat production, including in the cast of supporting players Martha Mansfield, Maurice Costello and other prominent artists.

Hotel Stenographer
BY ROE FULKERSON
* * * * ***

"Next time that night clerk gives me orders," announced the Detective belligerently, "I shall tell him e x a c t l y where he gets off. I have been laying for him for two days."

"Kelly," remonstrated the Hotel Stenographer, "when a man goes around with a chip on his shoulder, he hasn't much time to attend to his work. He is too busy balancing the chip."

"Chip-bearers are always up in the air. When somebody can get you up in the air, they can generally cut the ground out from under you."

"It's a lot easier to get up in the air than to come down. I know a lot of widows, who had aviators and balloonists for husbands."

"I never saw a man lay for somebody that he didn't hatch out trouble for himself. Trouble is easy enough to find without looking for it. It's better to forgive and forget, because if that bird at the desk is as bad as you say he is, you are in a mental attitude to give him a good crack at you."

"Come over here!" She brushed the imaginary club off his shoulder. "There! Now the chip is gone, and you are not carrying any deadwood around with you. When the night clerk goes after you again, he will not get your goat."

CREW BELIEVED LOST

No Hope Held Out for Safety of Dirigible Dixmunde.

Paris, Dec. 27.—Floating somewhere in the Mediterranean or lost in the sandy plains of the Sahara, there ended the tragic tale of the rigid airship Dixmunde, with 48 men aboard. No hope is now held out for the safety of the dirigible. The fact that each man of the crew was supplied with both a parachute and life buoy, leaves a faint, lingering hope that some may be saved.

The prevailing theory is that the Dixmunde is lost, with all hands, at sea, but some experts believe that she drifted into the Sahara desert, in which case the officers, passengers and crew may even now be wildly wandering in search of water, as their supplies are bound to have given out long ago. The Dixmunde left Toulon Dec. 18 for an observation cruise over the Mediterranean and Northern Africa.

Mrs. Joe Tinker Dead.
Orlando, Fla., Dec. 27.—Mrs. Joe Tinker, wife of the famous Chicago shortstop of former years, killed herself here while temporarily mentally deranged, it was revealed by members of the family. It was reported that she had died suddenly following a nervous breakdown. She was 41 years old.

C. A. Groce died suddenly at his home in Jackson township this morning at 9 o'clock. He had been ill only two days of heart trouble.

Charles Allen Groce was born in Walnut township March 3, 1864, and was the son of Allen and Lydia Crites Groce. He married Miss Jennie May December 27, 1891, who survives. The deceased was a member of the Reformed church of East Ringgold. He followed farming as an occupation.

Of his immediate family there are living one brother, and one sister; E. B. Groce and Mrs. Ella Riegel, of this county.

Taught Chinese Lacemaking.

The art of lacemaking was first taught to the Chinese of the Chefoo district by foreign missionaries about twenty-five years ago. They believed that by teaching lacemaking the women and girls would find profitable employment within their own homes, and the subsequent spread of the industry has fully justified their efforts. Although first taught in Chefoo, Chi Hsia Hsien was the first district in which lace was extensively made.

FIRE NEAR GRANGE HALL.

The home of Dustin Corne, son-in-law of Mrs. Sarah Woollever, was destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning. Mr. Corne had arisen at an early hour, started a fire in the kitchen stove and went back to bed. He was awakened not long afterwards by dense smoke filling his bedroom and discovered that the house, a five room frame structure was in flames. He managed by quick work to save some of his household goods. The house was completely destroyed. The loss will amount to about $1500 of which $500 is covered by insurance in the Hummel & Plum agency.

THE SICK.

Samuel B. Kindler who has been quite ill of heart trouble is reported much better and is now out of danger.

Caddy Miller, who had a serious attack of heart trouble and other complications passed a very good night and is now resting easy.

T. A. Boyle, the insurance agent, who has been quite ill at his home in Park Place of bronchial trouble, is reported much better and is on the road to recovery.

O'CONNOR GOOD LEGION MAN

Kansas Member Has Seen Long Army Service, Much of Which Was Unexpected.

John H. O'Connor, an active worker of the American Legion in Kansas, declares that the unexpected has always led him into a line of work that he did not anticipate. In fact, the Kansas man has said that even his military career in the World war was somewhat unexpected, for an early admiration for things military caused him to become a member of the National Guard at the age of fifty-one. He was discharged with citations and the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Born in Frankfort, Ky., he moved to Kansas with his parents in 1879, just as that state was emerging from a cluster of shacks and a few score of families to modern cities. He was educated in Winfield, and was thrown on his own resources early in life. He first tried southern California, but went "broke" 2,000 miles from home. He became a surveyor with a party in the Sierra Madre mountains, and accumulated enough money to get back to Kansas. A series of even less fortunate experiences followed, and in turn, O'Connor became a farmer, a laborer, a stone mason, a soldier, a printer, a traveling collector, until he finally returned to Winfield, where he remained until the World war. After discharge from the military service he was appointed postmaster of Winfield.

His military record is nearly as remarkable. He enlisted for service in the Kansas National Guard in 1885 and served until 1901. On the opening of the Spanish-American war, he volunteered for service. At discharge he was sergeant major of the Second Kansas Infantry. He then organized a company of the guard in Kansas in 1906, and had reached the rank of major in 1915, when detailed for border service. On May 28, 1917, he was detailed for a tour of instruction at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. In October, 1917, with 4,000 other Kansas men, he was mobilized and arrived in France in April, 1918, after a training period. He served in the Alsace sector, in the Argonne-Meuse, east of Verdun, and for a time was stationed in the Commerce area. Colonel O'Connor is now a member of the organized reserves.

A delegate to the Paris caucus of the American Legion, Colonel O'Connor has been an enthusiastic worker for the organization. He organized and was first commander of the Winfield post of the Legion, has served as state historian, and is an active member of the Forty and Eight.

RENAME BOATS FOR HEROES

Metropolitan Firemen's Legion Post of Boston Honors Members Who Gave Lives in War.

Believing that heroic deeds of members of the city fire department who perished in the World war should be commemorated, the Metropolitan Firemen's post of the American Legion in Boston has caused three fireboats to be renamed in honor of the department's dead heroes.

These three vessels, formerly known as Engine 31, Engine 44, and Engine 47 were rechristened as the John P. Dowd, Thomas A. Ring, and Angus MacDonald, respectively, at a special ceremony conducted by the Legion.

State and post officials, municipal officers and three thousand firemen of the department participated in the ceremony. Mayor James P. Curley was the principal speaker.

On the pilot house of each boat was placed a bronze tablet, reciting the valorous deeds of the man for whom the vessel was named. These tablets were unveiled by relatives of the war victims. A firing squad from the navy fired a salute as each boat was rechristened.

Home for California Post.

When the county supervisors of Tehama county, Cal., ordered the building of a new court house, the Red Bluff post of the American Legion succeeded in securing a portion of the old building for use as a Legion home. Only slight changes and repairs were necessary to make it into an excellent building for the Legion's purposes.

WASP BUILDS JUG

Constructs and Provisions Home
of Great Durability.

Living Food Is Stored Away in the Nest for Use of the Young Ones.

The very mention of the word
"wasp" too often inspires us with a feeling of dread. But more intimate contact—not necessarily with the stinging lancet—brings about a deep regard for these interesting insects themselves and for their rights as well.

Respect those rights, and we need have no fear of being stung. Besides, such fears are often folly, for many wasps cannot inflict a sting more painful than the prick of a pin.

Just as the daily life and works of a man command our admiration, so also do the lives and works of the wasps. The social wasps live together in peaceful communistic groups, in a common dwelling built by their united efforts, and there rear their young with extreme care.

The solitary wasps live apart, each living his or her own life independent of others of the species, except at the moment of wooing. For themselves they do not bother to build houses, but for their young they construct and provision homes that resemble jugs of great utility.

Let us watch the potter at her work.
Selecting a site which instinct tells her is suited to her needs, she flies away on noiseless wings to a path, roadside, or other locality where she may scrape together a tiny pile of fine dust.

Now she busies herself making cement by moistening the dust with her saliva. The resulting mud is thoroughly kneaded, shaped into a miniature ball, and whisked away to the chosen site.

Pressed tightly against the twig, the cement soon sets, becoming both hard and surprisingly waterproof. The wasp is away mixing more material.
Returning she adds another ball to the first. Again and again she comes with fresh supplies and proceeds quietly about her work.

A circular wall rises upon the foundation already laid. The whole looks like an acorn cap. As she continues the walls rise, curving toward a common center. Behold, an elfin fish globe!

Well might the work stop now, but the builder shows her artistry as she proceeds with her task. A graceful neck is fashioned about the globe's mouth, and a delicate flange is added, flaring out rufflike around it. She has finished. A fat little jug or vase of surprising symmetry and beauty waits to be filled.

Our jug builder, like other solitary wasps, provisions her nest with an abundance of fresh meat. Yes, more than fresh! It is alive! Putrid flesh would cause death.

Usually the victims of solitary wasps are stung in the majority of their nerve centers, and thus are rendered helpless, although life continues for weeks afterward.

When the nest is sufficiently provisioned with living food, the wasp lays an egg somewhere in the mass of disabled monsters. From it there hatches a tiny, helpless, grublike creature which proceeds to devour the nearest paralyzed giant. When all the food is consumed, this larva spins a cocoon, pupates, takes a long nap, and then emerges as a perfect wasp and an expert hunter.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Undecided.

Old Zeph Dorgan sat on a log near the bridge one Sunday morning, casting anxious glances at an uncertain sky. His willow fishpole and can of bait lay at his feet.

Before he had quite decided on the weather the minister came by, having taken a short cut owing to the fear of a sudden shower.

"Well, Brother Zeph," he asked, "Is yo' gwine to chuch or is yo' gwine fishin'?"

"Ah dunno yit," said Zeph. "Ah'm jest a-wrastlin' wif ma conscience."— Judge.

Why Not Find Out?

Two old bachelors were having a conversation on a street car filled with flappers. "What do they call that brilliant red stuff?" asked one.

"Lip rouge," replied the other.
"They didn't have it in our day."

"No, they didn't. But it is kind of pretty."

The second old boy leaned over and said cautiously: "Do you know, Hiram, I sometimes wonder how it tastes."

Then they both grinned sheepishly and turned to the market reports.

Power of a Smile.

A young woman carelessly tossed an apple core out of the automobile she was riding in and a motorcycle cop who was speeding past received it full in the face. He stopped and turned to her with a scowl, and the young woman had visions of an interview with the magistrate. But she smiled at him and her smile won his heart, for he said with a grin: "Lady, I'm glad you are not a bricklayer," and remounting his wheel he sped away.—Boston Transcript.

QUEER ENGLISH HAT STORE

Stock Has Been Kept on the Second Floor for More Than Hundred Years.

A man who attended the meetings of the international chamber of commerce came back by way of England.
He wanted a hat, and a business acquaintance, a man who had lived for years in England, suggested a place to go.

The shop was small and somewhat dingy, but its windows held a hat which appealed. An old man appeared to be the only attendant.

"Wait a moment," said the shopkeeper, "and I'll bring you down a hat like the one in the window."

Bringing down the hat meant a trip up a flight of stairs in the corner of the shop, and while the proprietor was gone the American looked about the place. There were hat boxes on the shelves, but no hats were on display, except in the window.

Presently down came the proprietor with the hat. It seemed to be what the American wanted, but he asked to see some other colors. Back up the steps went the shopkeeper, and down
he came with more hats.

The purchase was made, and while the hat was being wrapped the American made some inquiries regarding the business. He learned with astonishment that the hat store had been operated for more than a hundred years; that the present proprietor was the grandson of the founder, and that most of the stock of hats had been kept on the floor above the store ever since the business had been started.—Nation's Business.

LIKED FRANKNESS OF GIRL

Now New York Motorist Thinks That
There is a Limit to All Things.

Cyril thought the world of Drusilla.
She was attractive and intelligent and possessed a quality that he considered above all price—she was always frank and outspoken.

A few days ago Cyril took Drusilla for a ride in his popular-priced run-about and anxious to show its merits went faster than the law allowed. A motorcycle policeman noticed this and stopped him.

"You'd better slow down, feller," he said severely but not rudely. "Take it easy, now," he cautioned and turned away.

Then Drusilla spoke her piece.
"These cops," she said in a clear, loud voice, "think they know it all."

The policeman heard and came back.
Removing his hat he took out a piece of paper and wrote on it. "There's a summons, feller," he said quietly.
"You were going twenty-eight."

Two days later Cyril had paid a fine of $25 and three days later he had a new girl.—New York Sun and Globe.

Electric Eel's Power.

Enough electrical energy to stum
the largest animal can be thrown out of the body of an electric eel, naturalists say, yet they have never been able to determine the exact source of the current. These eels abound in the marshes of Brazil and the Guianas, and the natives have such a respect for them that they frequently change the routes of roads and marsh trails after they have become infested with these reptiles. In spite of its external similarity, authorities claim that the electric eel has nothing to do with eels, but is in reality allied to the carp and catfish. It has electric organs running the whole length of the tail, which are modifications of the lateral muscles, and are supplied with numerous branches of the spinal nerves. These organs consist of longitudinal columns, each composed of a vast number of "electric plates."
The posterior end of the organ is positive and the anterior end is negative, the current passing from the tail to the head.

Why Did They Leave?

That the ancient Chinese were settlers in Mexico is gradually becoming a historic certainty. Annals recently discovered at the foot of the famous Teotihuacan pyramids show inscriptions which were easily deciphered by experts at the Chinese embassy at Mexico City. Explorers 50 years ago saw something of Buddhist origin in some of the quaint customs of the peons. In old Chinese manuscripts in the Peking Imperial palace there is mention of some land that was visited by Buddhist missionaries 500 years before Christ and where the new gospel was met with good reception. It is now thought that the land meant in these old scripts was Mexico. Still Columbus or Leif Eric-son have not lost any of their adventurers' glory.

Twenty Billion Buttons.

There are 20,000,000,000 buttons manufactured in this country annually, and the industry has grown to such proportions that it equals, in dollars invested, and value of products, the cutlery industry or the manufacture of oilcloths and linoleum.
America has almost a monopoly on the manufacture of vegetable ivory buttons, which are made in enormous quantities from the toga nut. This nut grows plentifully in the northern part of South America and in Panama, and provides the greater part of the buttons used in men's clothing. If all the buttons made in a year in the United States were distributed equally among the population each man, woman and child would receive 182, with a few thousand left over for good measure.

David Beaver Died of Paralysis—Funeral Saturday Afternoon.

David Beaver died at his home, 161 East Mill street, Wednesday evening, December 26, at 8:15 o'clock of paralysis. He had been ill for a period of two years and five months. He was overcome with the heat while at work carpentering a house in Ashville and never fully recovered. Paralysis set in in a short time afterwards.

He was born in this city July 28, 1847, and was the son of Michael and Elizabeth Campbell Beaver. He married Miss Rose Waldelich in this city February 24, 1876. Mrs. Beaver three daughters and two sons, eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild survive. The sons and daughters are: Mrs. Grover C. Pickens, of this city; Fremont Beavers and Mrs. S. M. Spates, of Columbus; Mrs. Harold Moner, of Hamilton and Walter Beaver, of Cleveland.

Of his immediate family three brothers and one sister are living. They are Nelson Beaver, George Beaver and James Beaver, of Portsmouth and Mrs. Sarah Greer, of this city.

Christmas day the children of deceased gathered at the home and celebrated the holiday with their invalid father, little thinking that would be the last when they left for their homes Wednesday morning. He was a member of the Trinity Lutheran Lutheran church of this city.

The funeral services will be held at church Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. Rev. G. J. Troutman will officiate. Interment in Forest cemetery.

RENTAL LIBRARY

Small Charge Will be Made for Books Until Original Cost is Paid.

Through the interest of a number of Circleville ladies, a gift of money and books has been made to the Circleville Public Library. This donation makes possible the starting of a "Rental Collection" of some of the most recent books which are in unusual demand.

Seventeen books comprise the original collection. A charge of two cents a day will be made for rental. The money received will be used to add other books to the "Rental Library." When enough money has been paid in on any one book to pay for its original cost that book becomes part of the regular collection of the library and no further charge is made for its issue.

The interest being shown promises well for the success of the project and the library will, in the course of the year, benefit by the addition of many volumes which otherwise would not be available to the patrons.

Books, now ready are:—

Caine—Woman of Knockaloe.
Cather—Lost Lady.

Diver—Lonely Furrow.

Fletcher—Markenmore Mystery.

Graves—Just Steward.

Kerr—One Thing is Certain.

Maugham—East of Suez. (A play).

Montague—Deep Channel.

Norris—Bread.

Norris—Butterfly.

Oppenheim—The Evil Shepherd.

Sabatini—Fortune's Fool.

Sadler—Privilege.

Striding—Fombombo.

Tracy—The House of Peril.

Wharton—A Son at the Front.

Wilson—The Able McLaughlin.

In Memoriam.

Editor Union-Herald:—Louisa Kane eldest daughter of Maurice and Elizabeth Kane was born in Hocking county, Ohio, October 30, 1848, and departed this life at her home in Pickaway county Ohio, December 11, 1923, aged 75 years, one month and 11 days. She was united in marriage to James C. Hinton February 18, 1873, who preceded her in death more than two years ago. To this union were born three sons and one daughter. She was converted and united with the M. E. church at Bethany, Hocking county; later in life she had her membership transferred to the Salem church of which she remained a faithful member until transferred to the church triumphant. She will be greatly missed in her church society as she was always interested in the activities of the church and was a member of the W. C. T. U. to which she gave liberally toward its support. As a wife she was true and faithful, as a mother loving and kind, as a neighbor good and obliging and beloved and respected by all who knew her. She suffered much during her last sickness but bore it with fortitude and patience. She expressed no fear of death, her end was peace.

She leaves to mourn her death three sons; Josiah L. Edward G. and Harvey K. Hinton at home; one daughter Viola M. Hinton and one granddaughter, Mrs. Nolan Bitzer; three brothers; John L. Kane, of Logansport, Indiana; George Kane of Lancaster, Ohio; Charles C. Kane of Columbus, Ohio, and one sister, Mrs. Margaret Delong of Lancaster, Ohio, and many other relatives and friends by whom she will be sadly missed, but we feel that our loss will be her eternal gain.

The funeral services were held at the Salem M. E. church Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. W. S. Fisher officiated. Interment in the Whisler cemetery.

UNDERWENT OPERATION.

John Ryan, the junior member of the drug firm of Hamilton & Ryan, whose shoulder was dislocated and badly injured in a fall near the corner of Court and Main streets, underwent an operation at Mt. Carmel hospital Columbus, Wednesday. Mr. Ryan was on the operation table for fully three hours. It was found that the condyle, the radius head of the humerus was broken off and the ball had to be removed, as the end of the bone which holds the ball in the socket was broken off. It is thought that nature, will in time, grow a new ball and that Mr. Ryan will retain the use of his left arm. Dr. Farrer performed the operation assisted by Dr. Courtright.
